Just the Facts.

Fact 1: Absolutely no other comic dealer buys more golden and silver age comics than we do.

Although the pages of CBG are filled with other dealers offering to pay "top dollar", the simple truth is that Metropolis spends more money on more quality comic book collections, year in and year out, than any other dealer in the country. We have the funds and the expertise to back up our words. The fact is that we have spent nearly 2 million dollars on rare comic books and movie posters over the last year. If you have books to sell, call us toll-free at 1-800-229-6387. If you know of any comic book or movie poster collections, call us today for a generous finder's fees. All calls will be kept strictly confidential.

Fact 2: Absolutely no other comic dealer sells more golden and silver books than we do.

We simply have the best stock of golden and silver age comic books in the country. The thousands of collectors familiar with our strict grading standards and excellent service can attest to this. Chances are, if you want it, we have it.

Fun For All

Welcome to another great issue of your favorite fanzine and mine, Comics Source. We've got lots of exciting stuff in this issue, so sit back and get ready to enjoy.

First off, I'd like to welcome Gina and Richie Prosch to our pages. They are the team behind The Golden Age Emma Davenport, a new comic strip gracing our pages starting this issue. For those of you who love comics for more than their financial worth, this strip will be a real treat. If you enjoy the strip, I strongly urge you to order the comic. Support quality small press comics, folks!

We kick off another new department this issue with a section we call "Our Favorite Covers". This one is open to everyone, including (especially) you. We all have favorite covers, images that bring back fond memories, classic examples of our favorite artists' work, or ones that are simply "cool". Here's what I'd like you to do: Drop me a note or postcard and tell me what one of your favorite covers is. Tell me why, too. You don't have to write a page, just one or two sentences will be enough. You don't even have to send a photo (but if you have one handy, send it. If you want it back, include a SASE). C'mon, get involved. Part of the fun of our hobby is talking about it with others who share the same enthusiasm wqe do. By jumping in and dropping us a note, you contribute to the hobby in more ways than you can know—and maybe have some fun while you're doing it!

Speaking of cool covers, Mr. Comix contributes ten more picks for his list of top 100 covers of all time. After reading this, I bet you can think of a couple to nominate yourself.

Do you love movies? I don't think I've ever met a comic book fan who wasn't also a big movie fan. Well, here's an unabashed plug for our other publication, Collecting Hollywood. Thousands of folks who love movies also collect movie memorabilia, especially original movie posters. Movie posters are incredibly beautiful, designed to excite the senses and get you into a theater. They make wonderful decorator items, and have proven to be an excellent investment (if you'd bought an original Frankenstein one sheet in 1980, you'd have paid around $1500. Today you could sell for over 100 times your original investment). Collecting Hollywood magazine is our monthly magazine for fans of movie posters and memorabilia. We also publish the only price guide for movie posters, titled Collecting Hollywood: The Movie Poster Price Guide. Both publications are advertised in this issue. If you'd like a free sample copy of the magazine, just drop me a card.

Oops, out of room already. I talk too much anyway. Sit back and enjoy...and tell a friend about Comics Source!

FIRST IMPRESSION

I picked up my first issue of Comics Source (#26) at Barnes & Noble last week, and I'm thrilled! History, fun facts, features, fans—THESE are what attracted me to Comic Fandom twenty years ago, and it's good to see them revived in your magazine. You'd better believe I'll read Comics Source! I'll contribute, too, if you'll have me.

By way of introduction: I'm thirty-two years old, and have been hooked on comics since my mom bought me Fantastic Four #72, way back in nineteen sixty-something. I've written about comics in the pages of CBG, Amazing Heroes and Comics Scene, and I've written comics for Eclipse and Marvel. I'm married, and my four year-old daughter is becoming quite the Little Lulu fan.

Again, great magazine! I look forward to many, many more.

LITTLE LULU'S A GREAT WAY TO START! PRETTY SOON, SHE'LL BE DIVING INTO THE $1 BINS AT SHOWS AND CONVENTIONS! IT LOOKS LIKE YOUR HOBBY IS GOING TO AFFORD YOU OPPORTUNITIES TO BOND WITH YOUR DAUGHTER FOR MANY YEARS TO COME! (BY THE WAY, READERS, THIS ISSUE OF COMICS SOURCE FEATURES A STORY BY TOM, ABOUT A CORRESPONDENCE HE ONCE HAD WITH A PRISON INMATE.)

CENSORED

As usual, Comics Source #26 was another fine issue. You continue to improve. But the subject of this letter is to address some of Jim Cangialosi's comments on so-called censorship in the introduction to his column. Artists do NOT have the right to produce whatever they want, and don't even have the right to unlimited display of their wares. For instance, the use of minors in sexual situations is illegal in this country. That's nothing a simple law declaring ten year-olds and under as minors wouldn't rectify, but that's not going to happen. Where's the outcry against the arbitrary choice of eighteen being the upper limit? The truth is, the United States is a republic, not a democracy; perhaps in the latter, artists would have unlimited freedom...but not in the former. The idea that the pornography and extreme violence displayed in most of today's media outlets should be protected under Freedom of Speech would probably come as a shock to the Founding Fathers, who intended it principally as protection for political discourse in an age when public criticism of ruling authorities frequently meant imprisonment or death.

Let's stop fooling ourselves. Of course, censorship is the answer to the low quality comics have sunk to in recent years! If the Comics Code were strictly enforced, what exactly would be lost? It wouldn't censor the dispersal of ideas; ideas are already notably lacking in most of today's "freed" comics. Besides, no matter how much we fans want comics to be accepted as "adult" fare, they probably never will be; the nature of the medium itself will always keep it from happening. Let's face it, if anyone saw a picture of Henry Kissinger reading the most sophisticated comic you can think of, do you think a non-comics reading viewer wouldn't smile amusedly, chuckle, or even laugh? Of course he would! The image is absurd! Comics are a great entertainment medium that can convey broad ideas fairly well. But if a reader or writer is serious about exploring the realm of ideas, he ought to read REAL books—not Boiled Angel or The Invisibles. Not only do I think bad comics can be harmful to kids, I think they can be equally harmful to adults. Since when does age make one immune from harm? If adults were somehow immune to influence, wouldn't advertisers just quit and save their money?

With today's comics shops and conventions slowly being turned into soft porn showcases, I can only disagree with Mr. Cangialosi's relief at Dr. Wertham's failure. Instead, I mourn the disintegration of the Comics Code, his greatest legacy to comics.

Pierre Comtois

Lowell, MA

PIERRE, YOU'RE OBVIOUSLY A MAN WHO FIGHTS FOR WHAT HE BELIEVES IN. COINCIDENTALLY, SO IS JIM CANGIALOSI. HIS LETTER REPLYING TO PIERRE'S OPINIONS APPEARS DIRECTLY BELOW. OH, AND BY THE WAY NEITHER JIM'S NOR PIERRE'S VIEWS NECESSARILY REFLECT THOSE OF COMICS SOURCE OR ITS STAFF.

I was astounded by some of Mr. Comtois' assertions, and by the lengths to which he goes in rationalizing them. He seems to have taken a pragmatic view toward a very serious concept. It is the RIGHT of people to create what they feel should reach the public that would be most affected by censorship.

I agree that some of the material published today is vulgar, excessively violent and sexually explicit; but what about comics written with eloquence, passion? These are true works of art! Who has the right to decide what should reach the multitudes and what shouldn't? You cannot place that type of power into the hands of any single person or group of people—the results would be devastating.

Mr. Comtois, your statement that censorship is the answer to the current plight of poorly produced comics seems misguided. The solution lies in publishers finding quality writers and artists with fresh ideas. By favoring censorship, you would limit the creativity of any writer or artist, and would force an overabundance of mediocrity in their work. Writers and artists have the right to reproduce any thought or word that comes into their mind! When you get right down to it, that's all a book or a painting is: a thought given actual form. By censoring what CAN be written, drawn, painted, etc., you would be limiting thoughts. If the general public doesn't like what's being published, they shouldn't purchase them. Eventually, this would weed out the poorly produced material, and leave only the quality items available.

As someone striving to become a comic book writer, it hits me close to home when you say you feel a "true" reader or writer, someone SERIOUS about exploring the realm of ideas, should focus on "real" books. Just because a comic has pictures with colorful characters in it doesn't make it any less "real" than War and Peace. True, the book without pictures makes the ideas more abstract and personal to the reader, but the ideas conveyed in a well-written comic could carry the same weight and impact as those in any novel.

You may not like comics like Boiled Angel or The Invisibles, but what of the people who do? Don't they have a right to read what they like? And what about comic series like Sandman, Watchmen, and Batman: The Dark Knight? These books are CLEARLY intended for a mature audience, yet they are true classics that I'm sure will survive the test of time.

Do not sell the hobby so short. Just because the quality of many comic books has dropped, don't start favoring censorship. Violence and scantily-clad women simply don't have the staying power of tried and true Golden and Silver Age characters. It takes a great deal of thought to create a character from scratch and give it its own identity. Books—AND comics—have always been prime examples of the great creative powers and imagination of the human race.

You say "bad" comics can be harmful to children. If that's true, parental guidance should come into play. It's the duty of a parent, not the government, to know what his or her child is reading. And if a child is reading something he shouldn't, a parent must explain why it's "bad." That's why the so-called "arbitrary" age of eighteen is so important. When someone turns eighteen, we hope he has enough intelligence, education, and experience to make reasonable decisions. By that age, most people can separate fantasy from reality; therefore, they're allowed to read more adult related materials, like comics.

I do not personally like adult comics; nor do I think they should be available to anyone under eighteen. But I WILL fight against their censorship. This is exactly the type of situation our Founding Fathers had in mind when they established our right to Freedom of Speech. We have the right to write and publish anything we choose—but no one is forced to read it. As I said before, if you don't like something being published...don't read it! It's as simple as that.

But don't prevent someone else from reading that same item. Remember, when Dr. Wertham got on the comic censorship bandwagon, we lost a great number of fun, quality comics. Were those comics truly that "bad?" Did they really scar the minds of children? I don't think so. Nor do I believe censorship is the answer to the problems that plague comics, TV, movies and books. The answer lies in educating people to WANT quality entertainment. Remember, if you favor censoring something you DON'T like, someone may one day try to censor something you DO like.

WISE GUY

I owe you guys a big favor. Not only did you help me solve my insurance problems, you guys provided me an opportunity to meet and befriend one of the hobby's finest gentlemen (and in my original home town, no less)! John Wise and his associate (Mr. Jerry Pace, also of Paducah, KY) are taking over all my insurance needs in '96—including my collection!

I recently had the opportunity to meet John and Jerry in John's "museum" (I mean "home") in Paducah. Words cannot describe this man's collection! When he led me into the vault, I thought I was going to need CPR! I held books in my hands I thought I'd never even SEE! And I owe it all to you guys. Is this a great hobby, or what?

"MODERN" LOVE

No doubt, you will receive heaps o' letters decrying the inclusion in Comics Source #27, of an article concerning a recently-published comic book series ("Nightmare Visions: Grant Morrison's Doom Patrol). This letter, however, is not one of those; rather, just the opposite.

It's high time that serious collectors acknowledged the existence of currently published, quality comic book titles. True, favorites

COMIC-TEMPS™ SHOULD ONLY BE USED FOR SHORT-TERM STORAGE!

Retailers and Dealers use inexpensive polypropylene bags to transport their books to and from shows. Retailers also use polypropylene bags to make sure books are not smudged with fingerprints.

Many retailers have requested that we manufacture and distribute polypropylene sleeves. Why? Because their present suppliers are not delivering on time. Poor quality control, cheap imported sleeves, minimum dollar orders, strict eligibility requirements, ordering three months in advance, etc. We could go on, but you get the idea. They wanted freedom of choice.

Now Bill Cole Enterprises can and will give you that choice...

We will be stocking the new Comic-Temps™ in two sizes: for Current and Standard/Silver Age size comic books.

We're on the Information Superhighway!

such as Batman, Superman, Spider-Man, and the lot have been updated (?) and modified to appeal to the young, modern, "street-wise" reader—effectively bastardizing and ruining these characters for those of use who remember their heyday(s).

But those who have dropped new comics altogether in order to concentrate on back issues and earlier "Ages" are missing out on another comic book renaissance. Not since the black and white explosion of the early '80s has there been such a diverse selection of high quality titles on the market. Yes, the racks are inundated with silly, violent series starring gritty anti-heroes, teams of ridiculous mutants, and buxom bad girls. But nestled amongst these books (if your retailer has any gumption at all) are many extremely well-done titles by amazingly talented creators.

Granted, many of these titles are of an adult nature, but we're not talking pornography, here. There is a crop of creators now producing comics that not only stretch the edge of the envelope, but also hearken back to the original traditions and techniques of the first comic artists—including creator-owned or oriented series, storylines with social commentary prominently featured, and oftentimes an emphasis on humor (although this isn't always the case).

I fully realize Comics Source cannot become yet another Comics Journal—nor do I believe it should. But more articles like the one on the recent Doom Patrol series should definitely be included in its pages. Many collectors, myself included, love the art form for what it is, rather than for its collectible nature. Articles such as Michael Sutton's could serve to keep us abreast of high quality new work, and may possibly rekindle old interests in those who now just "collect by numbers."

Please, though, no reports on just what timeline the X-Men are now "living in," or on whoever is wearing the bat-suit this month. Let's keep it to worthwhile, quality new products.

Now, a suggestion. If you want to read something really progressive and innovative, try Meat Cake, by Dame Darcy. It's truly the cat's meow.

MARVEL COMICS SPECIALIST

4732 CIRCLE ROAD, MONTREAL, QUEBEC, CANADA. H3W1Z1. ph (514)481-2830

I have been dealing primarily in MARVEL COMICS for 25 years. The basis of my stock was assembled during the 1970s when I had the foresight to "load up" on these main titles and my inventory today offers great depth on all, including the early issues. My pricing for this ad was set having carefully checked all corresponding prices set by my competitors in the most recent issue of COMICS SOURCE and my prices are the lowest across the board. Please inquire if there are any issues you want that are not listed. Order with confidence. Satisfaction is guaranteed. Payment in US funds or equivilant by check, bank draft or money order. Canadians must add applicable taxes, all US/Overseas orders are tax-free. 10% discount if alternates are listed. Add $5 for postage/insurance. $.40 postage needed sending 1st class letter to Canada.

"Our Favorite Covers"

You Can't Judge a Book By its Cover—Or Can You?

It's been said that what's inside a book matters more than what's on its cover. That may be true in most cases, but you might have a hard time convincing comic book fans.

A few of our readers have selected their favorite comic covers from across the years. Maybe you'll agree with their picks—maybe you won't. If you do, that's great! If you don't, why not drop us a line to tell us about it. Send us YOUR picks, and give someone else a chance to read your profound, persuasive words of wisdom!

Incredible Hulk* #340. Marvel, 1988.
My favorite cover is Hulk #340, by Todd McFarlane. The Hulk's reflection in Wolverine's claws, juxtaposed against Wolverine's snarling face, tells the whole story. It's a modern classic!

Duane Wallin
Minneapolis, MN

Wonder Comics* #16. Great/Nedor/Better, 1947.
It's a beautiful cover from the '40s with a reverse bondage image (a LADY is rescuing a MAN who is tied up)! I like its action, its dynamism and its beautiful colors.

Melvin McCord
Charlotte, NC

Captain America* #113. Marvel, 1969.
Jim Steranko has been seriously underrated for eons, and this cover is one of his best! The eerie graveyard setting, Bucky's grief, and the skulking hordes of Hydra are enough to send a chill up my red, white & blue spine!

James Finnell
Lake Charles, LA

Howard the Duck* #1. Marvel, 1976.
Howard #1 may not be the greatest cover of all time, but it brings back fond memories of buying comics off the stand when I was a kid. And for me, that's what collecting is all about!

Kenneth Payne
Cliffview, NJ

The Shadow* #1. DC, 1973.
Here it is, folks! Michael Wm. Kaluta's first—and best—Shadow-oriented cover! The Shadow looms over the city he's sworn to protect, like some huge embodiment of the public's hatred of crime! And it's even a painted cover! What more could you ask for?

Charles Gilley
Lawrence, MA

Crisis on Infinite Earths* #7. DC, 1985.
The "Death of Supergirl" cover was striking for its beauty and its meaning. It carried a tremendous feeling of emotion as part of its extremely high skill level. My immediate reaction to the Crisis series was: "So what?" When they killed off Supergirl, my reaction became: "I beg your pardon?"
Then I started listening, reading, and buying the back issues.
I believe this was the first real death of a major comic character—a "death" which, in spite of Matrix Supergirl, has not been "taken back."
The cover was skillful, and the book was significant. To me, it is Number One!

Bob La Trémouille
Cambridge, MA

X-Men* #141. Marvel, 1981.
When I saw this cover on the newsstand, I knew it was John Byrne's finest. You can take all your subsequent Wolverine covers—including those done by Frank Miller and other notables—and toss 'em in the deepest lake, as far as I'm concerned. THIS is Wolverine at his most essential—on the run, a cornered, wounded animal determined to take as many of his enemies with him as he can! Byrne's layout is fabulous, too! This was the FIRST of the X-Men "alternate" timeline stories, and, for my money, it was the best! The cover's impact also lies in the "wanted" posters on the wall behind Logan and Kitty, featuring each X-Man's status: At Large, Apprehended...or Slain! Make mine Marvel (pre-'90s Marvel, that is)!

Harper Evans
Amarillo, TX

Are You A V. I. P.?

ARE YOU a V.I.P.? Here at Comics Source, we think of each and every one of our paid subscribers as V.I.P.s—Very Important People—whose love for comic books is the sole reason we are in business. Heck, without fans and collectors, this hobby wouldn't exist and Marvel and DC would have gone under back in the '70s.

Can't Do It Without You.

You see, because we don't have high ad rates, and aren't carried by many shops, we rely on you, our subscribers, for the lion's share of our budget. Because we depend on subscribers, we knock ourselves out making sure that Comics Source is everything you'd expect it to be. When you subscribe, you can count on issue after issue of great entertainment and a warm atmosphere of "collector community." And if you want a new department or a special article, all you have to do is ask.

World's Most Successful Magazines...

Reader's Digest, National Geographic, Time, and Sports Illustrated are among the most successful magazines in the world. All have one thing in common: They rely on subscriptions for the majority of their income. And so do WE (who knows, maybe someday we'll be up there with the big guys)! Other magazines rely on advertising dollars for the bulk of their revenue (giving the advertisers all the clout in editorial content). When subscribers are the most important, you (the subscriber) benefit because everything is geared towards satisfying YOU.

Fans Are #1.

Here at Comics Source, everything we do is for you, the comic book fan. You'll find lots of fun and entertainment in each issue. Lots of information, too. And, of course, if you're in a buyin' mood, you'll love the comic book classifieds (our unique marketplace) in every issue—so much to choose from!

Our goal is to make collecting comics fun again. Our mission is to bring back the good ol' days, when fans stayed in touch and shared a contagious enthusiasm for the hobby. Of course, the marketplace and the Ticker-Tape are unique features, too; but, even if you aren't buying comics anymore you can still share the fun of keeping in touch with fellow fans through the pages of Comics Source.

Become A V.I.P.

Maybe you're among those collectors who received this issue "free of charge." If so, start your own subscription. That way, you'll be included in all the excitement and fun of upcoming issues. On the inside back cover of this issue you'll find a subscription coupon for starting your own personal subscription at the low price of only $23.45 for twelve issues (a savings of $11.95 off cover price). You can send a check or money order, or use your Mastercard or Visa.

For Faster Service, Call.

If you'd like to charge your subscription to your Mastercard or Visa, you can give us a call at (615) 265-5515 Monday through Saturday from 9 AM to 6 PM Eastern Standard Time.

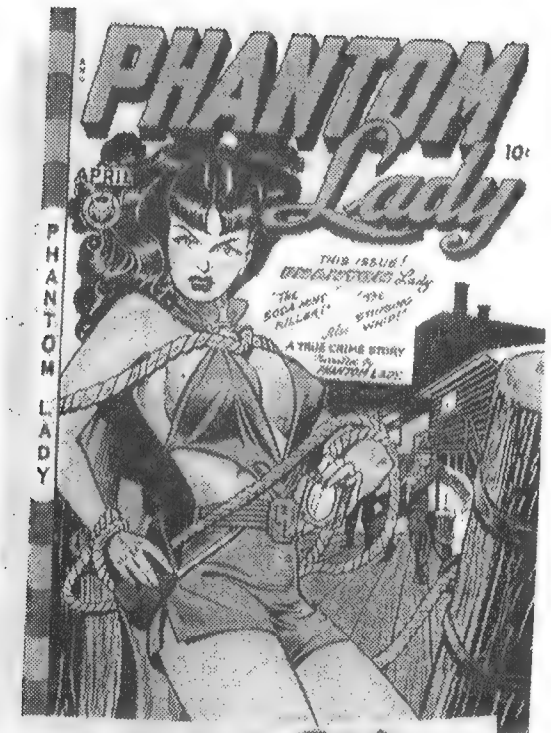
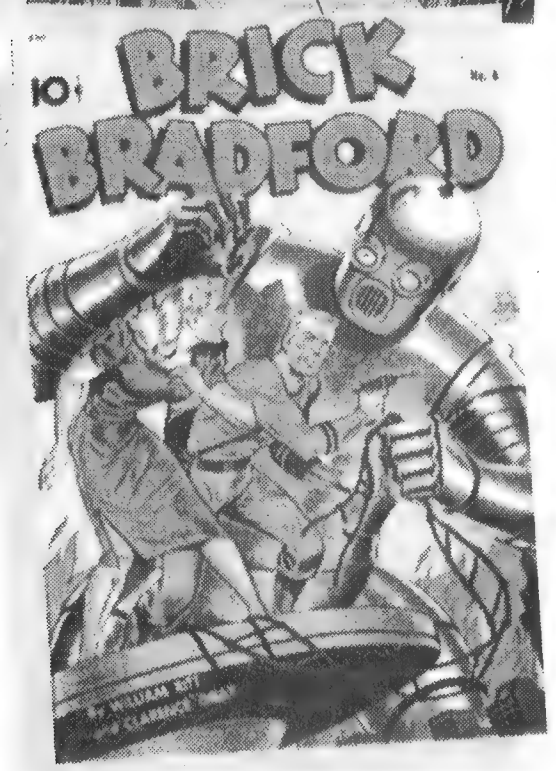
Mr. Comix

Wit and Wisdom from the World of Comix!

We Are Not Amused...





The envelope, please! This issue's choices for the 100 greatest covers are:

Worlds of Fear #10

Four Color #68, "Mother Goose" (tied with Four Color #201, "Christmas with Mother Goose")

Boy Comics #11 (tied with Boy Comics #10)

Silver Surfer #4

X-Men #11

Brick Bradford #6

Phantom Lady #17

Bulls Eye #1

Marvel Family #89 (like Captain Marvel Adventures #97, another prophetic cover; Whiz Comics #50 is a runner-up)

Batman #68

Mister Comix notes with passing interest that both Superman and the Silver Surfer are returning to the airwaves in their own series. Ditto, Flash Gordon. Mr. C doesn't hold out much hope. Although he liked Batman—the Animated Series, he doesn't think anybody's ever come close to the Fleischers' Superman, and he has his doubts the new version will be up to speed. Since he doesn't think much of the various animated incarnations of the Marvel line, he also has grave reservations about the new Surfer series. He has no doubt the new Flash Gordon series will be pretty dreadful, since it's from the same folks who dreamed up Phantom 2040 and Defenders of the Earth.

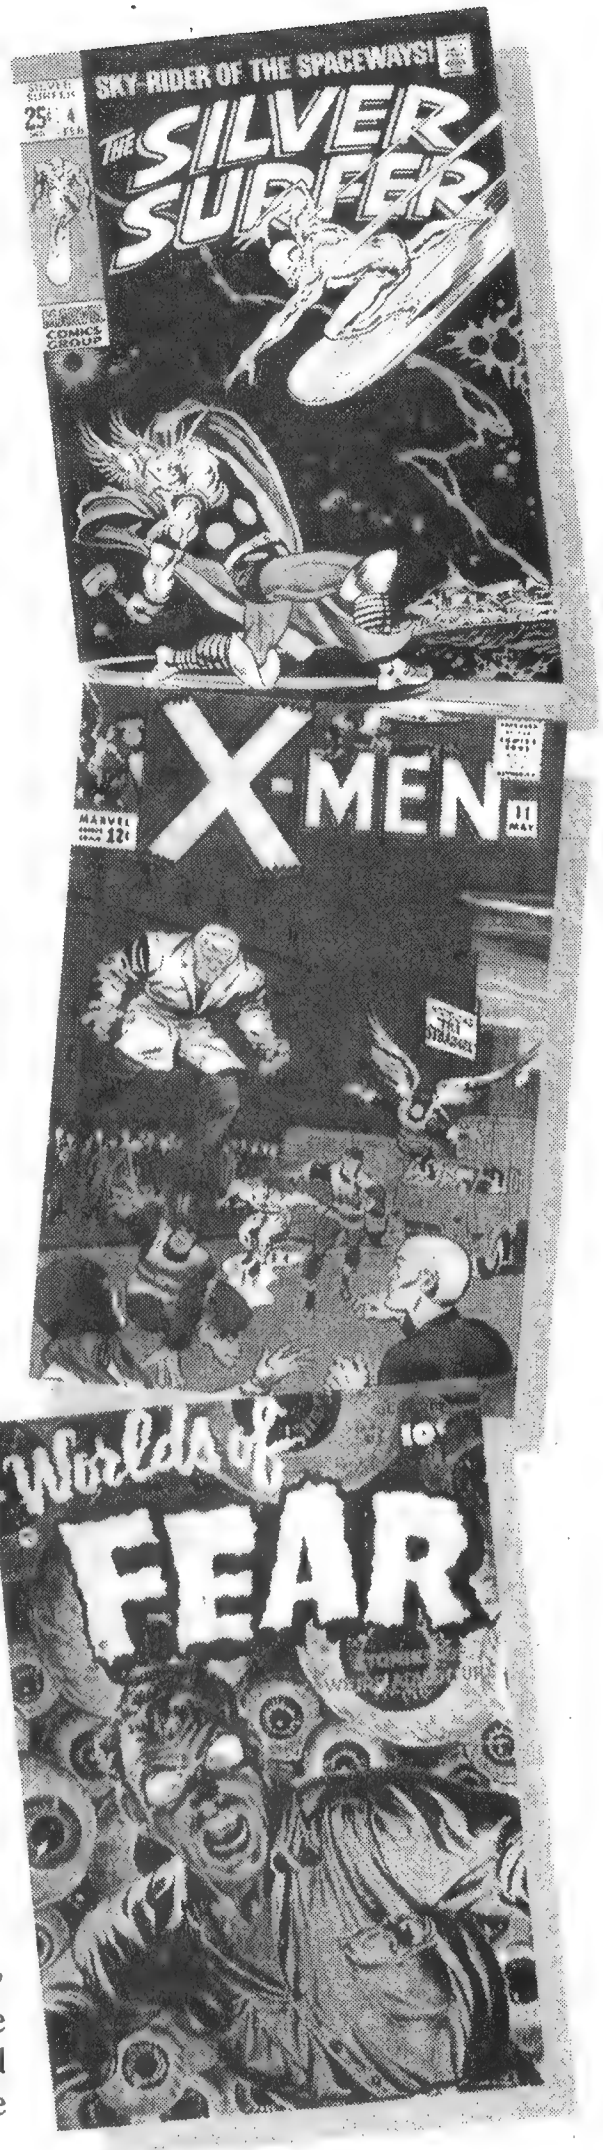
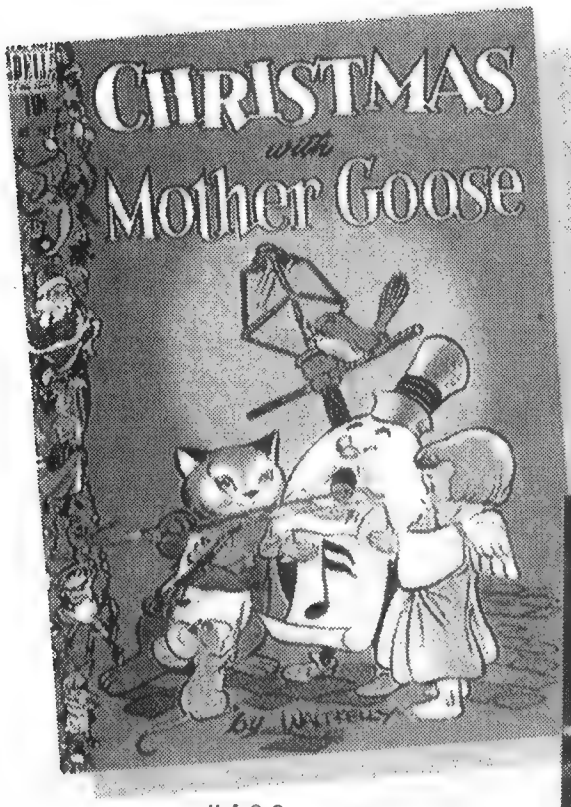
Mr. Comix is also not amused that Marvel has resurrected their Captain Marvel title. The Kree Captain Marvel was bad enough without bringing back his son, of all things. Mister Comix wonders why Marvel's taking yet another stab at a character who has little going for him except a famous title. Meanwhile, DC, having sold the rights to the name, can't title their Power of Shazam comic, Captain Marvel (it's hardly the Captain Marvel of old).

Speaking of half-baked superheroes, whatever became of Starhawk? Mister Comix was cleaning out his files the other day when he came across a full-page ad for Starhawk, which he reproduces here. Alas, Mr. C can't answer the question the ad poses, except to say that hype doesn't equal hip. Marvel truly was the House of Ideas once, but that was a long time ago. Now it's a lot closer to a House of Cards, with its comic book line as the weakest link.

Speaking of which, Mister Comix notes that Reed Richards has returned. It was a long time coming, and, for Mister C's shekels, it wasn't exactly worth the wait. At least we won't have to deal with Marvel's fun and games about whether he's alive or dead any more. Mister C quotes from the letters pages of F.F. #398: "Reed will not be coming back in issue





#400 any more than Doom will—they're dead." By issue #401, the letters page scribe had changed his tune again: "All these theories don't mean beans if Reed and Doom are really dead. And they are. Aren't they?" Or how about this from the letters page of #402: "Why do you readers keep thinking that we're going to bring back Reed and Doom? It's like you think that raising characters from the dead is standard Marvel practice!" Or try #403: "Fans from all corners of the globe seem to think that just because certain Marvel Universe characters have returned from the dead in the past, Reed and Doom are guaranteed an eventual resurrection. What about those Marvel characters who have died (Captain Marvel, Bucky Barnes, Thunderbird, Wonder Man, etc.) and STAYED dead? Why can't Reed and Doom be counted among their ranks?"

If anybody at Marvel ever wonders why their comic book business is flat, maybe they ought to READ one of them. Mister Comix is reminded of Frank Miller's comments on the letters pages of Sin City:

> More than a genuine affection, I positively adore some of the old characters. That's why I try not to look at what's being done to most of them, these days. Seeing childhood friends converted into drunk drivers, whiners, murderers, self-pitying losers—watching the creations of Jack Kirby, Stan Lee, and the rest transformed into poor imitations of Image Comics in a frantic effort by creatively bankrupt trademark holders to grab hold of the tailpipe of a passing bandwagon...I'd rather not know about it.

MARVEL SUPERHEROES

There's a rumor going around that Marvel's getting out of the comic book business. According to the rumor, they're going to license out their characters. Mister Comix first saw the rumor in the newsletter, Abandon Comics, which itself is supposed to be folding up shop. Mister Comix has to assume it's strictly a rumor, but if there's any truth to it—and it's making the rounds—it's an unhappy commentary on the decline and fall of the "House of Ideas."

SENSE of WONDER

THE RB-CC STORY (PART 1)

BY BILL SCHELLY
SEATTLE, WASHINGTON

Today, the modern shopping mall has replaced the town square—kids hang out there, checking out the latest merchandise and getting together with friends, and talking about common interests. In the 1960s and 1970s, the Rocket's Blast-Comicollector was the nexus of fan activity in Comic Fandom. Everyone subscribed, meeting every four, six, or eight weeks to check out advertisements for old comics and new fanzines, read the opinion columns, scan the letter pages, and pore over special features by some of the most talented amateur artists and writers of the day.

During the Golden Age of Comic Fandom (1960-1972), RB-CC was the only MAJOR ad-'zine. With its huge circulation, more copies of RB-CC went out than anything else published during those halcyon years. It was unique, and is fondly—and indelibly—stamped into the memories of fans who were active in that bygone era. While some of us dropped out of fandom as time went on, a new generation of fans would soon discover G.B. Love's classic fanzine.

What's the story behind its amazing success? How did it get started...and how did it achieve its preeminent position?

Our story begins, not at Love's home on SW 212 St. in Miami, Florida, but in the decidedly cooler climes of Inkster, Michigan. A large part of the origin of RB-CC is found in the history of a twenty-page ad-'zine called The Comicollector, founded by Jerry G. Bails.

In March of 1961, Bails published Alter-Ego #1. "My initial conception of Alter-Ego turned out to be unrealistic," he remembers. "I wanted well-researched articles and features, comic strips, news, and ads. Each of these features demanded different deadlines. The Comicollector was the first spin-off." The premiere issue appeared, without fanfare, in September 1961—between Alter-Ego #2 (Summer) and #3 (Autumn)—with the tag line, "The companion to Alter-Ego."

The first issue, printed by spirit duplicator, contained a statement of purpose:

> The Comicollector is an advertising 'zine devoted to the swaps and sales announcements of comics collectors and dealers. It will go out free to the regular readers of Alter-Ego, and to 300 additional comics fans. How often The Comicollector is published will depend entirely on the rate at which advertising is received. Want ads, trade lists, and price lists will be published for $1 per quarter page (with a minimum of $1).

Thus, Jerry Bails launched what would be the most enduring fanzine in 1960s fandom. The first advertisement in CC #1, on page one, was from John McGeehan, founder (along with his brother Tom) of The House of Info. The issue also contained ads from Frank H. Nuessel, Roy Thomas, Red's Book Shop, Paul Seydor, Claude Held and Ronn Foss. It set a precedent for running articles as well as ads, with a review of Fantastic Four #1 ("Four of a Kind")

THE COMICOLLECTOR

No. 1 The Companion to ALTER-EGO Sept., 1961

A MESSAGE FROM THE PUBLISHER - -

The COMICOLLECTOR is designed as a companion to ALTER-EGO; both are non-profit, amateur fanzines published for the enjoyment of comics fans throughout the English-reading world.

ALTER-EGO is a 30- to 40-page quality zine devoted to articles, features, and stories about the costumed heroes of the comics (past and present). It is published 2 or 3 times a year. Individual copies sell for 30¢ each. No subscriptions are sold.

The masthead and mission statement from Comicollector #1 (Sep. 1961).

THE ROCKET'S BLAST

To The Members:

It was a long hard pull but it looks like we made it. Believe it or not it took a lot of hard work into this issue. Like all fine things The Rocket's Blast will improve with age. As I have said before The S.F.C.A. and The Rocket's Blast will be as good as the members want it to be.

A suggestion was made by Buddy Saunders that we print all the names and addresses of all the members in every issue. However, to keep putting the same ones in the paper every month would get kind of dull. Here is what I suggest. Each time we get a new member we put his or her name and address in the next issue. In other words the members we have now would have their name and address in the next issue.

Next month we will publish some of the letters we receive. Address your letter to:

The S.F.C.A.
9940 Jamaica Dr.
Miami 57, Fla.

In this issue that you are now gazing upon was supposed to be our Feature, an article about one of the members. But the information I asked for from one of the members did not reach us in time to be included in this issue. However, starting with the next issue The Feature will be included.

"Dividing Line"
By B.G. Schools Jr.

From his chosen vantage point Martin began yelling to the people across the street. He dared them to cross the line he had just drawn lengthwise across the roadway.

Being a family of honor the Dude took Martin's Dare. Howard, being the head of the clan, stepped over the dividing line first. The rest followed.

The Dude were never to be heard of again for they were no longer residents of this world.

You see, Martin lived in the fifth dementsion.

"Remember, everything is impossible until it happens."

Page 1 of the first issue of The Rocket's Blast (12/61).

by Roy Thomas.

The Comicollector #2 (1/62), which boasted a circulation of "over 500," announced a regular bi-monthly publishing schedule. While many copies went out gratis, subscriptions were now "encouraged" at the rate of six issues (one year) for $1. The single copy price was 20¢.

The second issue featured ads from Bill J. White, Ron Graham, Harry Thomas, Bill Thailing, Steve Perrin, Drury Moroz, Ed Lahmann, L. L. Simpson, Donald Foote, Raymond Miller, Steve Gerber, Barry Bauman and many of the same people previously mentioned in #1. It ran twenty-six pages, some of them printed in hard-to-read green ditto—a practice soon discontinued. Comic Fandom apparently had a pent-up need for a 'zine devoted to the buying, selling and trading of comic books and related material. The concept was an immediate success.

While The Comicollector was being launched with the full support and acceptance of Comicdom, another publication had also appeared—but with far less attention and support. It was The Rocket's Blast, edited and published by G.B. Love.

Gordon Belljohn Love was born in 1939 in Atlanta, Georgia. Early in life, he became a comic fan through his love for the original Captain Marvel comics in the 1940s. By the beginning of the 1960s, Love (who was born with cerebral palsy) was living in Miami, Florida. "I guess I was looking for something to occupy my time, and hoped to develop something that might eventually become profitable," he recalls. "My original idea was to combine SF and comics in a fanzine, but I quickly dropped the SF and concentrated on my first love, comic books. I picked the name The Rocket's Blast myself, but I really don't remember how I came up with it."

In December 1961, G.B. Love issued RB #1, his first fanzine, with a "print run" of six copies. It was four pages long, produced in a typewriter using carbon paper! G.B. had published a letter in Mystery in Space informing fans of his intention to put out a fanzine. "At the time I produced the first issue of RB, I was unaware of anyone else trying [fanzine publishing] too. After I began publishing, I think the first fanzine I discovered was Alter-Ego." (Love published under the aegis of "The S.F.C.A."—which originally stood for "Science Fiction and Comic Association," but soon changed to "South Florida Comic Association." In any case, it was merely the name of Love's company.)

The Rocket's Blast was not, at first, primarily devoted to ads. The comics-oriented articles were generally brief and of variable quality. Some were profiles of Golden Age characters, while others consisted of commentary about new comics. None of the first eight issues exceeded five legal-sized pages. Issue #9 (August 1962) contained "Rocketeer Gossip" by Rick Weingroff, "Heroes Unlimited" by Fred Bronson, "Best of SF" by Robert Harner III, a Graviteer text story by Buddy Saunders, and a couple of pages of ads. The printing was crude mimeograph, and the only illustration was by Saunders.

Meanwhile, The Comicollector sported the usual pristine appearance of a Bails publication. CC #4 (5/62) introduced a feature called "Auction Block," in which fans could put items

No. 12 CIRCULATION Over 600 BI-MONTHLY Sept.-Oct. 1963

BEGINNING THIRD YEAR

This issue marks the end of CC's second year of publication. CC-1 is dated Sept. 1961... #7, Sept. '62. During this 24 month period over 360 different pages have been printed, with an overall total number of copies mailed out about 7,000; this is your guarantee of the largest possible readership for your comic want/sale/and trade lists & ads. There are over 40 advertisers herein!

JOY TO STAY

Joy will continue to be your hostess through the pages of CC under the pen of Bill, along with his son Capt. and Corporal Roy.

Readership Increase

I venture to say that not long from now CC will sport 700 circulation - then 800 ... and eventually, 1,000. ... such an increase must be accredited to the ... Mystery in Space, Fantastic Monsters, ... one thing or two we tried ... to recommend it.

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Beginning with the next issue of CC (#13), Bill White, former editor of the successful COMIX ILLUSTRATED, assumes the duties of publishing CC. Along with the capable assistance of Roy Thomas, co-editor of A-E with originator ... Bails, your COMICOLLECTOR will ... to be fandom's leading ... zine.

LITHO INSERT

As advertised, on page you'll find the bonus photo-offset page. This, as is many of CC's extras, a result of your preferences; reader demand. I hasten to add that this sort of thing cannot be expected often, as it is very expensive, and the majority of readers, which must be heard, prefer to keep CC's cost as low as is possible.

Joy Holiday PORTFOLIO

Due to the many requests of new readers since CC-8, we decided to dig into Joy's repertoire and present "The Best of Holidays," which we trust you regular subscribers won't mind seeing again!

The Comicollector #12, Foss' last issue as editor.

up for bid. It also contained a pin-up of Dr. Fate and the Spectre by Raymond Miller, and an installment of "Serialously Speaking" by Ron Haydock.

CC #6 (7/62) contained this startling message from the publisher:

> In order to allow time for work on Alter-Ego #4, The Comicollector will not be published during the summer. Please do not send me advertising, subscription renewals, or orders for the next issue until further notice.

The popularity of CC, and the demands on Bails' time, were becoming a burden.

Then, in The Comic Reader #12 (8/20/62) came another startling announcement from Jerry:

> Alter-Ego #4, which I hope will be my finest...will be my last! Other demands upon my time make it impossible for me to continue as the publishing editor of Alter-Ego and The Comicollector, but rather than let these popular fanzines die the death of most amateur efforts, I am passing the reins on to another fan...whose interest, talent, and capacities offer the greatest promise.

That fan was Ronn Foss. In that same issue, Ronn wrote:

> On June 3rd I wrote Jerry Bails of my interest in 'zine publishing. I mentioned some of my ideas and aspirations. He wrote back that he was looking for someone to assume publication of A-E and CC. By late June it was decided.

The main difference between the Bails CC and the Foss CC was the inclusion of numerous illustrations, creating a more lively appearance and greater length. CC #7 (9/62) had thirty-four pages, the largest issue yet. Foss also added a letter column, and carried over some features like Ron Graham's "Graham Crackers," as well as "Auction Block." He also introduced a lovely "mascot" named Joy Holiday, whose image also appeared in Alter-Ego.

Joy Holliday, mascot of The Comicollector and Alter-Ego.

CC #9 (1/63), a half-size issue (5 & 1/2" by 8 & 1/2"), printed the first attempt, by Leonard Brown of Long Beach, California, to standardize comic book grading conditions. (The grades were Uncirculated, Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor.)

CC #12 (9/63) bore the by-line "Comicdom's Most Widely Read Fanzine," with a circulation of over 600 comic fans (attributed to plugs in Fantastic Four, Mystery in Space and Ron Haydock's Fantastic Monsters—no wonder the ditto printing was rather light in places)! Apparently the growing readership was too much for Ronn; he decided issue #12—which ran sixty pages for a mere 30¢—would be his last. Page one featured the headline: "Under New Management," stating that Biljo White (with some help from Roy Thomas) would assume the duties of publishing The Comicollector. On page one of #13 (10/63), Joy Holiday handed over the reigns of CC to Capt. Biljo.

Biljo, former editor of Komix Illustrated and soon publisher of the renowned Batmania, lived in Columbia, Missouri. When he took on the new 'zine, he wisely switched to high quality mimeograph printing—which alleviated the problem of light copies, since mimeo doesn't become lighter as you increase the print run. This twenty-three-page issue contained a column by Roy Thomas called "Roy-al Ramblings." Ad rates were still $1 per quarter page.

Biljo's issues also contained installments of The Comic Reader, which was devoted to news of upcoming pro comics. Bails had given up TCR, and it was in publishing limbo; in fact, CC #15 was actually titled The Comicollector and Reader.

But producing an ad-'zine involved a tremendous amount of time-consuming, mundane work—typing up number-laden ads, keeping records, printing and collating, etc. It also demanded adherence to a regular publishing schedule, since advertisements, by their very nature, are time-sensitive. To make matters worse, the editors of CC had full-time jobs and families: Bails was a college professor, Foss an ambulance attendant, and White a firefighter. Gordon Love, on the other hand, was able to devote all his energies to the task.

Soon, Biljo (who had hoped to improve on Ronn's publishing frequency) had to admit CC was too much work (he was also carrying the burden of his mother's recent death at the time); issue #15 (3/64) was his last.

Would The Comicollector die? It had burned out three of fandom's most capable editor/publishers in two and a half years! And what about all the subscriptions that were unfulfilled?

Capt. Biljo turned to G.B. Love. Would he be interested in taking over the reigns of CC?

Due to the crudeness of his earliest issues, Comicdom had not, at first, accorded much respect to Love. He was neither a talented artist nor writer, nor a particularly knowledgeable collector; thus, he was not a part of fandom's "inner circle" (if there was such a thing). But he had acknowledged his shortcomings, and The Rocket's Blast had improved considerably during its second year of publication.

Love had been gradually attracting an impressive staff of young writers and artists. With articles by Rick Weingroff, Paul Gambaccini, Raymond Miller and Bill Spicer, and art by Buddy Saunders, Alan Weiss, Raymond Miller and Howard Keltner, The Rocket's Blast's non-ad material was among the best fandom had to offer. Saunders' ditto covers were especially colorful, and soon introduced the recognizable logo (which Buddy designed).

In CC #15, White's last issue, Love responded to his offer (and I think it's worth quoting at length):

> When Biljo first approached me with the idea of taking over CC, I felt extremely honored to have been asked; because, as we all know, CC has been one of the mainstays of fandom.
> My first thought was to publish CC as a separate 'zine and charge the same price for it—30¢ per copy—and to have the same ad rates, and so on. However, I hit on an idea I think all my regular RB readers and the regular CC readers will be very happy about—I'm going to publish both 'zines and staple them together into one issue! Yet—now get this—you will pay only the regular price of the RB (35¢ per copy)!
> Some of my main objectives will be to make sure CC retains its own separate identity (both 'zines will be sectioned off, except for the ads which, of course, will appear throughout both 'zines), to try to revive some of the things that made CC so popular in the past (the first of these will be the "Hall of Fame" series, which Biljo White will handle), and to continue to come out on a monthly basis, which I consider to be extremely important.
> I know I have promised you a lot, and I know it must sound too good to be true. But I don't believe I have promised you anything I can't fulfill.

Love also agreed to honor all CC subscriptions, thus absorbing CC's customer base.

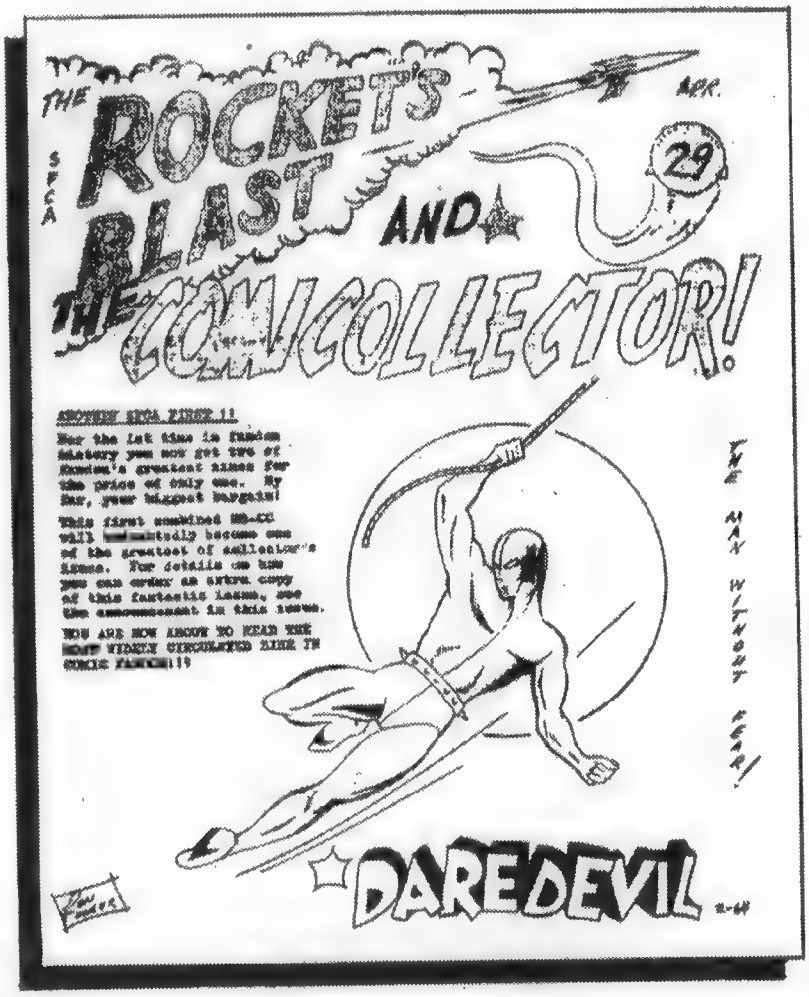
And thereby hangs the tale of the fateful merger between The Comicollector and The Rocket's Blast—resulting in the now legendary RB-CC. In issue #29 (4/63), the first "double-issue" debuted, with the cover (of the Golden Age Daredevil by Buddy Saunders) sporting the blurb: "For the 1st time in fandom history you now get two of fandom's greatest 'zines for the price of only one."



RB-CC #29 brought the two major ad-'zines together as a single powerhouse. Despite the slightly unwieldy title, G.B. Love's fanzine lasted longer than any other regular 'zine from the 1960s.

NEXT ISSUE: The saga of RB-CC concludes, as G.B. Love's fanzine scales new heights to become one of the most important mainstays of the Comic Fandom movement of the 1960s.

Bill Schelly's book The Golden Age of Comic Fandom is now sold out from Hamster Press. The remaining copies are available from Bud Plant Comic Art, PO Box 1689, Grass Valley, Ca., 95945, for $11.95 + $2.50 postage.

The Kompleat Kirby

A continuing checklist series for Jack Kirby collectors. This month: the letter "J"

BY TOM MOREHOUSE

Welcome back, Kirby fans! This month, we're exploring the "J"s. There's lots to cover, including a plethora of self-titled addenda, so let's get going. We begin with the Boy Explorers and Captain Sinbad on a Trip to the Moon. Ready? 3...2...1...Blast off!

Joe Palooka, Vol. 2, #5. July/August 1946. Family Comics. A five-page Simon/Kirby (stand-alone, not part of "The Seven Tasks of Sindu-San) Boy Explorers story, was later reprinted in Joe Palooka #62 & 116. Gashouse (the "Flatbush Firebrand"), dreams of the team going on a mysterious mission to the moon, where they encounter two warlike races who ask them to lure a third, peace-loving race to Earth, so the others can continue their fighting. Using Inter-Space Television (the debut of regular broadcast TV had come only seven years earlier, at the 1939 NY World's Fair), the Boy Explorers demonstrate the sport of boxing (Joe Palooka's latest fight) in the hope of convincing the warriors to give up their ways and become pugilistic spectators. The plan backfires, and Gashouse finds himself in the middle of a swarm of angry fight-fan warriors. And then...he wakes up.

You can find unpublished pencils from other Boy Explorer tales in the seventh issue (Oct. '95) of John Morrow's excellent fanzine, The Jack Kirby Collector. (See also All-New Comics #13, Terry & the Pirates Comics #3 & 4 and Joe Simon's The Comic Book Makers.)

Journey into Mystery #51-125, Annual #1. March 1959-February 1966, Summer 1965. Atlas/Marvel Comics.

When Kirby returned to Atlas in 1959, then-editor Stan Lee immediately put him to work on the science fiction books that had become the company's staple. Suddenly, the newsstands were bursting with Jack's monsters (with quirky names supplied by Lee)! Strange Tales, Tales of Suspense and Tales to Astonish were full of them...but not so Journey into Mystery. True to its name, it held stories of mystery and, in a number of cases, stories of actual journeys INTO mystery. The stories held creatures, to be sure; but Kirby used them only as secondary characters to make his points.

Thematically, this series bears a strong resemblance to Jack's work on DC's House of Mystery/Secrets titles; good triumphing over evil (in any form you like), man's inherent goodness overcoming temptation, and brains over brawn. In "Menace from Mars," one of my favorites from issue #52, a space exploration team returns with news of an impending Martian invasion—not by little green men, but by huge, Viking-like warriors! The invaders demand to meet with an envoy from Earth. Of course, Earth's leaders want to choose their most powerful delegate; instead, a thin, weak man named Hamilton suggests HE be sent to demonstrate Earth's defensive capabilities. He gets his way, and soon arrives on the red planet with a mysterious cargo. As expected, the Martians assume he is the best we have to offer, and anticipate an easy conquest. The crafty Earthman then plays his hand and brings out his cargo: a gorilla, an elephant, and a stallion. Obedient to Hamilton's commands, the animals display their power to the stunned aliens, who change their minds and call off the attack. Kirby would re-use this idea in Fantastic Four #2, in which the Skrulls cancel a planned invasion after Reed Richards shows them pictures of "earth creatures" taken from Strange Tales, etc.

Jack gives us yet another foiled Martian Invasion in #57, when a dog, owned by a human whose body has been taken over by a Martian, turns on its "master" and forces him to reveal his true identity. The same Martian returns in the following issue, only to die from exposure to a simple bacteria against which we humans long ago developed an immunity. Issue #62 sports a Kirby/Ditko cover and features the story of Xemnu—the Hulk, whose plans of conquest are stifled by a clever, unassuming human who sends him rocketing off, sunward bound. Four months later (#66), Xemnu is back, only to be tricked, by the same human, into hypnotizing his own atoms into disintegrating . In #70, a prototype of Spider-Man's future enemy, the Sandman, goes down to defeat at the hands of a youngster with a bucket of water. (Speaking of prototypes, the Sorcerer in #78 is a Dr. Strange-type master of black magic, and the cover of #80 features a man shrunken in size—a la Henry Pym!)

Beginning with issue #83, Journey into Mystery becomes a journey to Asgard, home of the Norse gods—the greatest of whom is Thor, the god of thunder. Simon & Kirby had used a Thor character in the 1940s in Adventure Comics, and Jack had done a story at DC in the '50s about a man finding Thor's hammer. Now, in the '60s, he and Stan Lee crafted their own version of Norse mythology, giving Thor a human identity with all its attendant frailties and problems: Dr. Don Blake's unrequited love for his nurse, Jane Foster (of whom his father, Odin doesn't approve); and a bad leg that (conveniently) requires him to use the walking stick that, when stamped on the floor, transforms him into his god-form.

Early on, it seemed Kirby and Lee couldn't decide what to do with the character (what kind of enemy could stand up to a god?); but, as time went on, the scope of the stories became more and more spectacular. In #87, a backup feature, "Tales of Asgard," began, featuring a host of secondary characters who eventu-

THE DIARY OF DR. HAYWARD
by Curt Davis
DR. HAYWARD HELPLESSLY WATCHES KROMO DRIVE OFF WITH LORA.
AS THE CAR SPEEDS ALONG THE HIGHWAY, GAINING VELOCITY AT AN ASTOUNDING RATE OF SPEED, KROMO'S HAIR BLOWS MADLY IN THE WIND, THE BLUE LIGHT OF THE MOON LIGHTS UP HIS FEATURES. KROMO'S EYES NARROW TO MERE SLITS, HIS MOUTH TWISTS INTO A DISTORTED GRIMACE. A SHRILL CACKLING LAUGH RIPS FROM HIS THROAT— HIS PLANS HAVE WORKED TO PERFECTION— NOTHING CAN STOP HIM NOW!
SOMEWHERE ALONG THE COUNTRY-SIDE, THE MOURNFUL HOWL OF A MONGREL BREAKS THE STILL-NESS OF THE NIGHT!
SILAS, DO YOU HEAR THE STRANGE SOUNDS COMING FROM THE BARN AND THE PIG PEN— SOMETHING IS WRONG— I KNOW!
D'YA THINK IT MIGHT BE A PROWLER TRYIN' TO MAKE AWAY WITH THE LIVE STOCK?
SUDDENLY A CAR SPEEDS BY AT A TERRIFIC PACE WITH A MADMAN AT THE WHEEL....
MUSTVE BEEN THAT CAR WE JUST HEARD WHIZZIN' BY LIZ, NOTHIN' TO SOMETHIN' TELLS ME IT'S MORE'N THAT— LISTEN— THE WIND BE A FEARED OF.
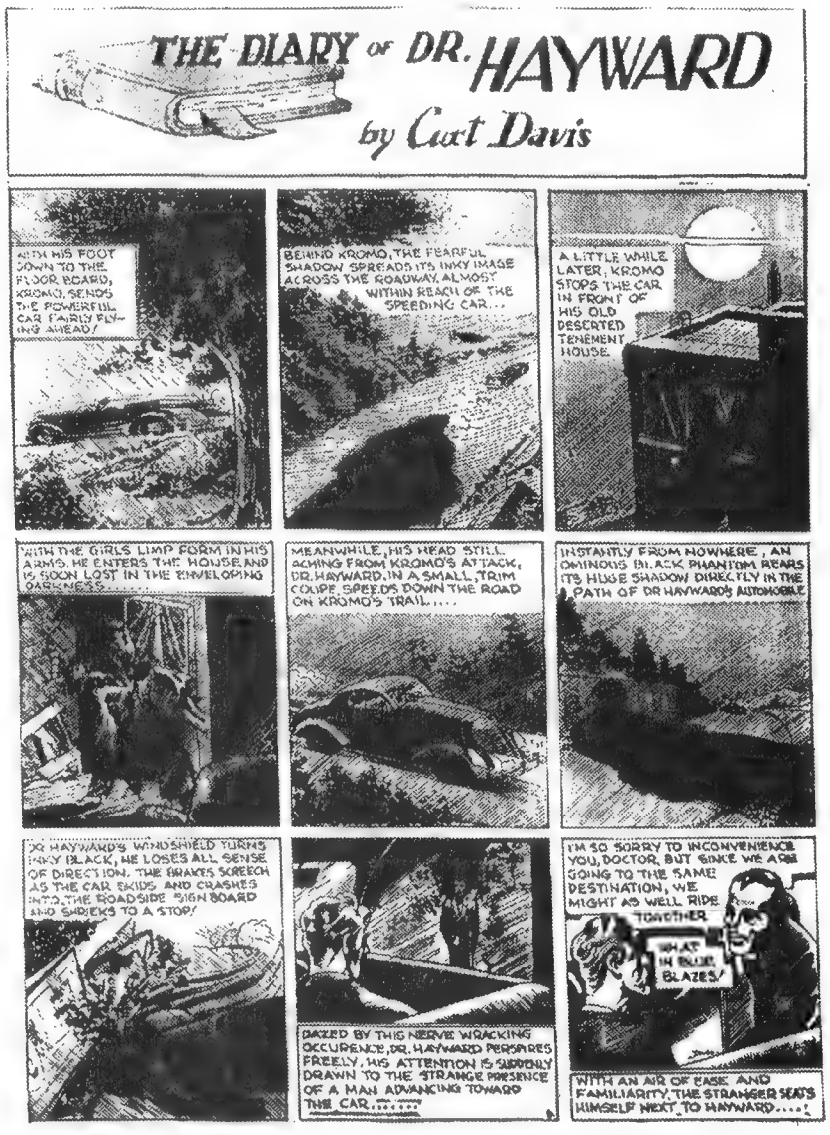
THE PEACEFUL JULY NIGHT IS SUDDENLY TRANSFORMED INTO A ROARING WINTRY GALE...
A HUGE UNEARTHLY SHADOW IS CAST OVER THE COUNTRY ROAD FOLLOWING IN THE WAKE OF THE FAST DISAPPEARING CAR...



THE DIARY OF DR. HAYWARD
by Curt Davis
WITH HIS FOOT DOWN TO THE FLOOR BOARD, KROMO SENDS THE POWERFUL CAR FAIRLY FLY-ING AHEAD!
BEHIND KROMO, THE FEARFUL SHADOW SPREADS ITS INKY IMAGE ACROSS THE ROADWAY, ALMOST WITHIN REACH OF THE SPEEDING CAR...
A LITTLE WHILE LATER, KROMO STOPS THE CAR IN FRONT OF HIS OLD DESERTED TENEMENT HOUSE.
WITH THE GIRL'S LIMP FORM IN HIS ARMS, HE ENTERS THE HOUSE AND IS SOON LOST IN THE ENVELOPING DARKNESS...
MEANWHILE, HIS HEAD STILL ACHING FROM KROMO'S ATTACK, DR. HAYWARD, IN A SMALL, TRIM COUPE, SPEEDS DOWN THE ROAD ON KROMO'S TRAIL....
INSTANTLY FROM NOWHERE, AN OMINOUS BLACK PHANTOM REARS ITS HUGE SHADOW DIRECTLY IN THE PATH OF DR HAYWARD'S AUTOMOBILE
DR HAYWARD'S WINDSHIELD TURNS INKY BLACK, HE LOSES ALL SENSE OF DIRECTION. THE BRAKES SCREECH AS THE CAR SKIDS AND CRASHES INTO THE ROADSIDE SIGN BOARD AND SHRIEKS TO A STOP!
DAZED BY THIS NERVE WRACKING OCCURENCE, DR. HAYWARD PERSPIRES FREELY, HIS ATTENTION IS SUDDENLY DRAWN TO THE STRANGE PRESENCE OF A MAN ADVANCING TOWARD THE CAR.....
I'M SO SORRY TO INCONVENIENCE YOU, DOCTOR, BUT SINCE WE ARE GOING TO THE SAME DESTINATION, WE MIGHT AS WELL RIDE TOGETHER
WHAT IN BLUE BLAZES!
WITH AN AIR OF EASE AND FAMILIARITY, THE STRANGER SEATS HIMSELF NEXT TO HAYWARD....!

Kirby shows his cinematic influence in these two never before reprinted pages from Jumbo Comics #2.

ally made their way into the main series.

I have so many fond memories of this series that picking all BUT my very favorite would be impossible. Picking my VERY favorite, however, is easy. Issue #112 pitted Thor against the Hulk in an awesome, albeit unresolved, battle, inked by Chic Stone. When Marvel commissioned me to do the endpaper collage for their Five Fabulous Decades of the World's Greatest Comics hardcover, I didn't hesitate for a moment in choosing the figures of Thor and Hulk; they came right from the cover of this landmark issue, a page of which sold recently (for WAY more money than I could pay) at Christie's Marvel Art Auction in New York.

The Ultimate Kirby Machine from Jack Kirby—Portfolio and Jack Kirby Heroes and Villains Vol. 1.

Jumbo #1-3. September-November 1938. Fiction House. For the true collector, every acquisition is a thrill—but some finds stand out more than others. Finally closing out the Jumbo category on my Jack Kirby want list was just such a moment for me. After years of searching, with all its associated heartaches ("Sorry, I just sold it," and "Did you hear? Some guy found #1 in a box at a flea market for $10!"), I had Jack's FIRST published comic in my possession! "Wilton of the West," "The Count of Monte Cristo," and "The Diary of Dr. Hayward" were actually newspaper Sundays (14 1/2" and 10 1/2") printed on red, green and off-white paper under a variety of pseudonyms ("Fred Sande," "Jack Curtiss" and "Curt Davis," respectively) created while Kirby was working at the Eisner/Iger shop.

Lou Fine, also at Eisner/Iger at the time, took over "The Count" in #3 and "Wilton" in #4. Jumbo also features early work by Eisner, Bob Kane and Dick Briefer in all three issues. A number of the Kirby pages have been partially or fully reproduced recently: Wyman/Hohlfeld's The Art of Jack Kirby has one page of "Wilton," one page of "The Count," and three pages of "Dr. Hayward" (miscredited) from Jumbo #1, along with one page of "Dr. Hayward" from Jumbo #3; the Kirby Unleashed portfolio has the same "Dr. Hayward" page (J#3); Will Eisner's Spirit magazine #39 includes a panel from it, as well; Maurice Horn's Comics of the American West has 1/2 page of "Wilton" (J#3); and fellow Kirby fan Greg Theakston included one page of "Dr. Hayward" (J#3) and one page of "Wilton" (J#2) in his Jack Kirby Treasury, Vol. 1. Blackthorne completely reprinted a standard-sized (Jerry Iger's Classic) Jumbo Comics #1 in 1985. Reprinted here are two more pages of Dr. Hayward from Jumbo #2 that clearly demonstrate the influence of the cinema on Kirby's storytelling style.

Jungle Action #10-11, 18. July, September 1974, November 1975. Marvel. Issues #10-11 have unpublished Kirby Black Panther art. Issue #10 has Jack's character concept drawing for the Panther(also found in Jack Kirby Masterworks), with a different name ("Coal Tiger") and costume. Issue #11 features the unpublished cover to F.F. #52 (1st Panther), and #18 has a Kirby/Janson cover. The Jack Kirby Portfolio (sometimes referred to as the Marvelmania Portfolio) has more unpublished Panther art, as does the program cover to the 1966 NY Comicon.

Justice, Inc. #2-4. July 1975-November 1975. National Periodicals (DC). In the final year of his early '70s DC tenure under Carmine Infantino, Jack attracted assignments ranging from the dream world (Sandman), to the real world of war (Our Fighting Forces, featuring the Losers), to the world of the future (Kamandi). Along the way, he tackled three issues of tales about the Avenger, a character created by Kenneth Robeson (creator of Doc Savage). Similar in feel to the Shadow, this pasty-faced hero of the '30s pulps had the ability to push his features into any shape he desired, a team of trusted assistants, and Mike & Ike (his pistol and knife). He used these skills and tools to fulfill a personal vendetta (his wife and child were thrown out of a plane) against

After an origin issue drawn by Al McWilliams, Kirby and writer Denny O'Neil teamed up to give us three fantastic adventures pitting the Justice, Inc. team against the Skywalker, the Monster Bug, and a blimp filled with explosive pigeons that took them on a slay ride in the sky! Jack also drew the covers to #2 & 3, while fellow comic veteran Joe Kubert did the covers for #1 & 4.

Justice Traps the Guilty #1-11, 17-19, 21-23, 56. October 1947-August 1949, August-October 1950, December 1950-February 1951, November 1953. Prize/Headline Publications. Following on the heels of their success with Headline Comics, Simon & Kirby launched another "true" crime series with a bang. The cover to the first issue shows a crook being strapped into the electric chair, while bystanding police point out that, although he is the "king" of the underworld, he is about to have a very short reign! Talk about attention-getters! The rest of the issue is just as good as the cover, with S & K tales of extortion, strangulation, arson, a period (1891) piece about a mysterious beheading and, in a strange foreshadowing of In the Days of the Mob (Kirby's 1971 crime comic), "The Case Against Scarface," (Al Capone)—featuring a similar dinner party execution and ending with a shot of a tombstone that reads "Justice Traps the Guilty." Issues #1-10 & #18 all have S & K covers and interior art, #11, 19 & 21-23 have S & K covers, and #17 has an in-house ad for Black Magic #1 with an unpublished cover. Issue #56 has neither cover nor interior art by S & K, but features them as part of a criminal line-up on a cover drawn by fellow studio artist Marvin Stein as a protest against the Comics Code Authority's condemnation of the book for its content. You can find a copy of the cover and the story behind it both in Joe Simon's The Comic Book Makers (B&W) and in The Art of Jack Kirby (color).

Addenda to the "J"s:

Jack Kirby Collection, Vol. 1. 1991. Planet Studios. A signed & numbered, limited edition set of six pins (Thor, Captain America, Hulk, X-Men and two Silver Surfers) based on Kirby art, plus a biography of Jack.

Jack Kirby Collector #1. September 1994. Twomorrows Advertising. Authorized by the Kirby estate, John Morrow's labor of love is a terrific source of information and insights into Jack's life and work—plus it features tons of unpublished kirby artwork every month. Ask for it in your local comics shop—or, better yet, look for the ad elsewhere in this magazine, and support it by subscribing!

Jack Kirby Masterworks. 1979. Privateer Press. Produced by Mitch Itkowitz and Larry Shell, this portfolio has a Kirby/Simonson Fighting American on the front cover and a Kirby/Sinnott Silver Surfer on the back (for comparison purposes, the un-inked version is on the inside back cover). Inside are unpublished pieces of pencilled and inked comic book and comic strip art from Jack's career—including many done expressly for this hard-to-find compilation. A poster of Fighting American and Speedboy offered with JCM is even tougher to come across! According to Mitch, the last ones he had were ruined in a flood at his home. I'm sure there are still some out there—you've just got to search diligently for them (of course, that's easy for me to say—I've already got mine! But it's true, nonetheless).

Jack Kirby Portfolio. 1970. Dimensional Industries. Originally advertised in Marvelmania magazine #1 & 2 as part of a portfolio series by members of the Marvel Bullpen. Paul Doolittle recently reviewed this collection of nine pages of unpublished pencils from Fantastic Four and Thor (plus a badly reproduced photo collage and an unused "Surf Hunter" Sunday page) in The Jack Kirby Collector #1-4. The same issues of JCM also partly (no collage or "Surf Hunter") reproduced the portfolio, while the "Surf Hunter" page can be found in Jack Kirby Masterworks and The Art of Jack Kirby. One of the F.F. pages, a splash of Galactus, was adapted for use as the cover to the Jack Kirby's GODS portfolio. Greg Theakston later used the wraparound cover, a quintessential Kirby machine, as the endpapers of his original run of Jack Kirby Heroes & Villains.

Jack Kirby Quarterly #1. 1993. Amplitude Concepts. Another non-profit Kirby fanzine, this time produced by Englishman Chris Harper. The JKQ also features articles on Jack and loads of B&W line art with an across-the-sea point of view. Interestingly enough, most British fans are used to seeing Kirby in B&W, because most British comics (at least the Marvel ones) are published in that format.

Jack Kirby's GODS. 1972. Communicators, Ltd. Published by Jack's son Neal, this set of four full-color posters comes in a bluetone Galactus-like cover envelope (see Jack Kirby Portfolio above), and features Kirby/Don Heck renditions of four Norse gods—Balduur (original spelling), Sigurd, Heimdall and Honir. The last person I know of who had any of these is Eddie Avinger at Passaic Book Center in Passaic, NJ.

Jack Kirby's Heroes and Villains, Vol. 1. 1987. Pure Imagination Publishing. A reproduction of a sketchbook done by Jack for his wife Roz in the early 1970s, featuring many of the characters he had created or co-created over the years. If you want a taste of the Kirby genius, find yourself a copy!

Jack Kirby's Heroes and Villains, Black Magic Edition. 1994. Pure Imagination Publishing. Take the same book mentioned above, except this time turn over the sketches to a cadre of inkers, both known and unknown (myself included), and you've got the Black (Jack) Magic Edition. Planned and begun prior to his death, the project became a way for all involved to pay tribute to the man without whom comics as we know them would not exist. A deluxe hardcover version is planned, according to publisher Greg Theakston.

Jack Kirby's New Gods. 1971. A limited edition portfolio released in conjunction with Jack's appearance at the Disney WorldCon (see addenda to the "D"s). It features his Fourth World prototypes, including a Darkseid with EARS!

Jack Kirby Treasury, Vol. 1. 1982. Pure Imagination Publishing. Fellow Kirbyphile Greg Theakston's comprehensive history of the man and his work. This volume covers the years 1917-1948, and is full of examples of Jack's newspaper, pulp, and comic work, both solo and with long-time partner, Joe Simon. A personal friend of the Kirbys, Theakston gives his readers a glimpse of the private as well as public persona of the King of the Comics.

Jack Kirby Treasury, Vol. 2. 1991. Pure Imagination Publishing. The second in a planned three-volume series, this edition, fronted by new Kirby/Theakston art, covers the period between 1948 and 1960 (my personal favorite period of Kirby work). One of many Kirby-related projects Greg is working on, this book details the creation of Boys Ranch, Romance Comics, Fighting American, Black Magic, Police Trap, Foxhole, Bullseye, and many others—as well as numerous UNPUBLISHED ideas and characters. Theakston, it seems, has an unlimited supply of Kirby original art, and shares it in abundance in these books. If you can track them down, they're well worth the price. Good luck!

Jacob & the Angel. THIS IS ONE BEAST OF AN ITEM TO FIND! It's a print of Kirby's version of an angel (very alien-like) doing battle with an overly-muscled Jacob, which was interpreted into a miniature piece of sculpture. Both are signed and numbered, and supposedly a second in the series exists, but no one I know has ever seen it—and the sculptor is nowhere to be found. Anyone out there have any leads? If you can't find the original, Chris Harper reproduced it in the second issue of his Jack Kirby Quarterly fanzine. Dark Horse Comics is going to be publishing three (?) Biblically-themed Kirby pieces of art soon, but I'm not sure if this is scheduled to be among them. If it isn't, it should be.

"Johnny Reb & Billy Yank." Kirby loosely laid out in pencil this mid to late '50s Sunday newspaper series. Inked in detail by Frank Giacoia, it ran (at least Kirby's part) November 1956-January 1958, and told the story of the Civil War from the point of view of two soldiers. Jack Kirby Masterworks reproduces some pencilled pages, and The Art of Jack Kirby contains a fully inked page. (See Classics Illustrated Special #165a for more Civil War illustrations by Jack.)

Whew! My fingers are worn to a frazzle! Be sure to join me again next time, when (among other things) I make the case for Kirby's cover credit on K.O. Comics #1! See ya then!

Tom Morehouse is a well known collector of Jack Kirby comics and art.

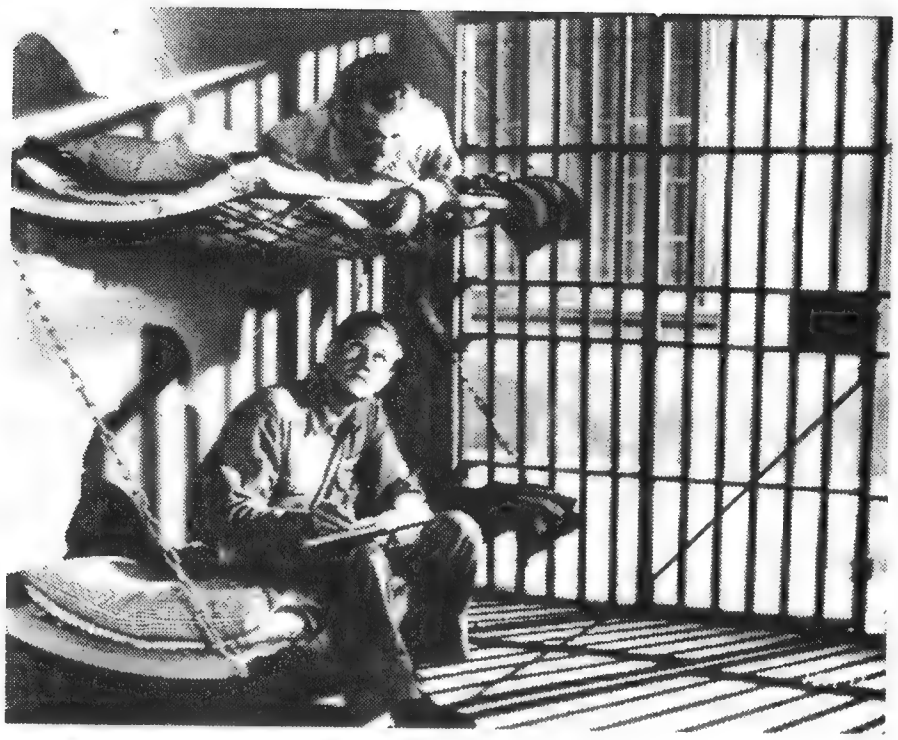
Only the Lonely

How the Invincible Iron Man Bridged the Gap Between Collector and Con



BY TOM FIELD
STRATHAM, NH

"...Iron Man #116 was just one of those comics...you know, the type you just know is paving the way towards a new age of greatness. I don't know what's gotten into you people, but everything you folks are producing is coming out classic. In the past you've had your good comics and your mediocre, but now, headed for the 1980s, I can't find a mediocre Marvel anywhere! I'm not sure, but it's just as if you are giving your older comics a new and dazzling look to guide them into the new and hopefully dazzling decade. I like what you folks are doing—stay with it!"

—excerpt from a letter I had published in Iron Man #120, March 1979.

1979 was a long, lonely year for me. I was the only teenage boy in Augusta, Maine who read comics (or so it seemed). And it's quite likely the biggest thing going on in my life was that Dave Michelinie; John Romita, Jr.; and Bob Layton were producing Iron Man comics.

Little did I know, though, when I blurted out that little love letter to Iron Man—one of about thirty comics letters I had published over an eight-year period—I was about to embark on an experience that has stuck with me far longer than the Michelinie/Romita/Layton stories about which I wrote.

In the first incarnation of Comics Scene, back in 1982, former comics letter hack Beppe Sabatini wrote a piece, "Confessions of a Letter Hack," or somesuch, in which he described what happens when your name and address are published in a nationally-distributed comic book. You get hate mail from some fans, love mail from others. You get junk mail from EVERYBODY (to this day, eight years after my last letter saw print, I still get solicitations from people who want me to buy Mr. Spock commemorative plates). You get weird chain letters, obscure surveys from grammar school students, and desperate pleas from homosexual men in need of human contact.

And you get letters from prison inmates.

What men doing hard time want from your typical comic book geek, I don't know (I don't WANT to know). But here stands the evidence.

My prison pen pal was a man by the name of Ben Halland, who was serving time in the Florida State Prison. This is the first letter he sent me. It arrived out of the blue on March 28, 1979:

Dear Tom,

I read your letter in Iron Man comic mag. This is how I know your name and address. I am not an avid reader of comics, but I do read them from time to time.

I am writing to you because I want to start a friendly correspondence if you are interested. I am eighteen years old.

—Ben

He piqued my interest. From my position in Augusta, Maine, the Florida State Prison—ANY prison—was another world, and this Ben Halland (prison number 030902) was first contact. Everything I knew about prison I had learned from depictions of Ryker's Island in Spider-Man and Hero for Hire comics (where the inmates sure did say "freakin'" and "Christmas" a lot). Of COURSE, I wrote back!

I don't have copies of the letters I sent, but judging from Halland's reply, I was curious about life in prison. "My interest varies, perhaps because I crave excitement and am eager to challenge the unknown," he wrote in his second letter to me.

But my main problem is staying alive in this mad house and not being provoked to defend myself. But the odds are too great—I'm talking about the odds of life. Actually, they have always been too great, only I didn't realize it before. But few people do, and even die not realizing it. Being the kind of person I am, though, has made the odds against me even greater, prohibitive—really a sure thing.

I am in prison for something I didn't do. Robbery. I have three more years to go before I max out. I can get out even earlier on parole.

I was born in Jacksonville, Fla., and raised by an aunt in Miami, Fla. Many people say I was before my time. In other words, I was introduced to too much at too young an age. I knew more than the average kid my age knew.

Well, you take care and write soon, okay?

PS: May I have a photo of you?

Had I been any older than fifteen and from any more worldly a place than Augusta, Maine, I might have read some portent into that odd "PS." Instead, Mr. Naive Youth thought he was Norman Mailer and that he had the next (actually, given the timing, the first) Jack Henry Abbott on his hands. I did all I could to encourage Ben to write, so I might learn more about him and how he viewed his circumstances. In his third letter, dated May 1, 1979, Halland told me about his life before prison:

Before I got caught up in the situation I am now in, I was going to school. I played hooky with the fellas now and then, and we would go to a place named the Curve Market and steal fruit, then spend the rest of the day on Miami beach.

I dig reading and writing. I dig philosophy and the challenge of understanding things I don't understand.

One of the topics Halland often discussed was what he called "Universal Mind Power," which I took to be some sort of quasi-religion or relative of Transcendental Mediation. He set me straight in a May 21, 1979 letter:

Universal Mind Power isn't religious. It is letting the power within you flow freely. No magic, no gimmicks. For example, some people are always seeking peace of mind, serenity of spirit and dominion over the life they are living. Even though everyone is seeking these things, they do not know where to begin. In seeking the perfect power within us, we must use all the strength, wisdom and intelligence we have, and we must persist in our seeking until we find the real "truth" about ourselves.

You think of your body as being limited in time and space, having a certain weight and height and moving about upon the face of the earth, wholly in a circumscribed area. Physical evidence proves this to be so.

This is not so with the perfect power within you. It is infinite; it has no limitation. It is everywhere present at all times. It knows all things, is all wise and all powerful.

The perfect power within you, Tom, is universal mind power individualized as you. No one has ever been able to understand all about the mind. Some have had glimpses of the enormous capacities and tremendous power of the mind, but since it is infinite no one will know all there is to know about the mind.

So, all for that.

This was pretty heavy stuff for a kid whose only exposure to psychology was the Bob Newhart Show. Besides, at that age I was still wrestling with such Stan Lee platitudes as, "With Great Power Comes Great Responsibility." I wasn't ready for Universal Mind Power.

Nor was I prepared for some of Halland's requests. As he became more comfortable with me, he began asking me to send him things—magazines, stamps. Finally, after I sent him those items, he wanted money—of which I had none.

I was eager to please Halland, because he was teaching me a lot—more, probably, than I realized. For instance, he was at Starke in June of '79, when John Spenkelink became the second criminal (after Gary Gilmore) to be executed following the reinstatement of capital punishment. This is what Halland wrote of the incident:

The "murder" of John Spenkelink has got to be one of the most saddest days of my life. I slept none that day. The National Guard and state police were here with their tear gas and helicopters. They hurried and killed a man when they really didn't need to.

During the week he was to be executed, I watched his mother and sister when they came to visit him. Man, it was pitiful. If I ever do anything to face the death sentence, I am going to hold court in the streets.

Read what the papers had to say about the execution:

...apparently was given three 2,250-volt shocks of electricity at two-minute intervals.

For two minutes, Spenkelink sat motionless, his head shaved under a black hood topped by a metal knob, his arms, waist and legs fastened to the chair, as six prison officials watched without expression from a few feet away.

Tom, two wrongs don't make a right. Spenkelink didn't have to die. Especially like that.

I think the governor of Florida is a beast with no regard for human life. He does not respect himself; he has no honor, and he only thrives for political influence. It is a poor man who has no honor. Before you do a deed, think how you will think back on it when the years pass. Do nothing you will be ashamed of. I think Governor Graham will never find peace.

To each of us is given a life, Tom. To live with honor and pass on having left our mark, it is only essential that we do our part, that we leave the youth strong. Man, life is an island in an ocean of loneliness whose rocks are hopes, whose trees are dreams, whose flowers are solitude and whose brooks are thirst. Money and other material <expletive> is only important to the small of mind. The important thing is to do the best one can with what one has.

The Spenkelink letter was the last I ever heard from Halland. His final request was for me to send him $10, and I politely declined. He just stopped writing after that.

I've often thought about Ben Halland, wondered what became of him—did he ever leave prison? If so, did he return, as do so many people who, as an inmate friend of mine says, "serve life sentences on the installment plan?" Is he even ALIVE today? If so, does he remember the correspondence he had for a brief time with a boy from Maine?

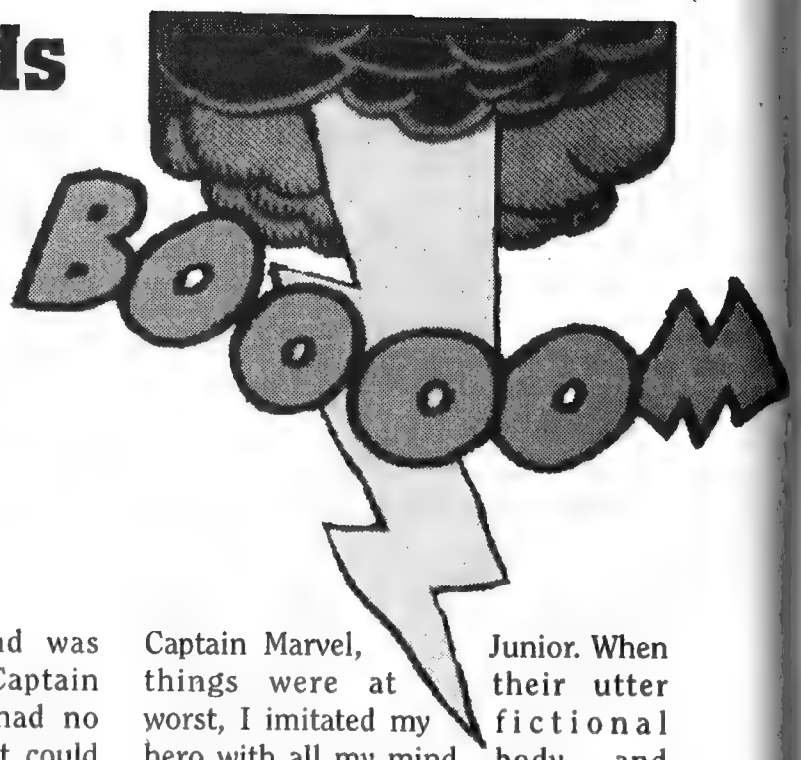
If Ben Halland is alive today, I doubt he remembers me. Why should he, and why would I even WANT him to?

But I'll never forget him. Not because of who he was or what he said, necessarily, but because he moved me to think. He moved me to think about people, society and criminal justice at a far earlier age and in far greater depth than I otherwise would have. And that's more than I ever got from Iron Man.

PS—Five years ago, I sold the Iron Man comic books I loved so much. Yes, they were GOOD...but good enough to keep packing up and moving with all the other accessories of adult life? Nah.

Ben Halland's letters, though, I've saved. I can't even fake a reason why. I guess some memories are just harder to let go than others.

With Two Mighty Words and a Glorious Bolt of Lightning!



How Mac Raboy's Magic Brought Captain Marvel Jr. to Life

BY KEIF A. FROMM
NORTH BRUNSWICK, NJ

Persevering. Proficient. Perfect. How can three words describe a man so appropriately, when we really know so little about him?

The gentleman in question was no mere hack artist, but an illustrator with talent and vision. With few people to imitate and even fewer to credit, he helped form the comic book hobby itself. He was an artist before his time. His name was Mac Raboy.

In order to understand why I've chosen to talk about Raboy's artistry, you'll have to know a little bit about me. From ages nine to approximately fifteen, I suffered from constant illness. For a large part of my childhood, I endured a continual stay at Manhattan's Mount Sinai Hospital. Under such conditions, what's a child supposed to do for a sense of release? In my case, I began collecting Golden Age comic books.

Every day, I was being continuously poked and prodded; but in the comics, no one got hurt, no one got hospitalized, and the good guys always won. This alternate four-color reality gave me hope and stamina. And the character that almost single-handedly granted me this strength was not too unlike myself. His name was Captain Marvel, Junior!

In his alter ego of Freddy Freeman, he was crippled—he walked on one crutch, and was virtually helpless. But as Captain Marvel, Jr., the word fear had no meaning for him; no opponent could thwart the blue-and-gold, pint-sized powerhouse. Because of my comics, I was as mentally stout as the greatest super-hero; but physically, I was just as frail as some of those heroes' alter egos. So you see, I was both as unfit as Freddy Freeman, and as stalwart as Captain Marvel, Junior. When things were at their utter worst, I imitated my fictional hero with all my mind, body, and soul. I WAS Captain Marvel, Junior!

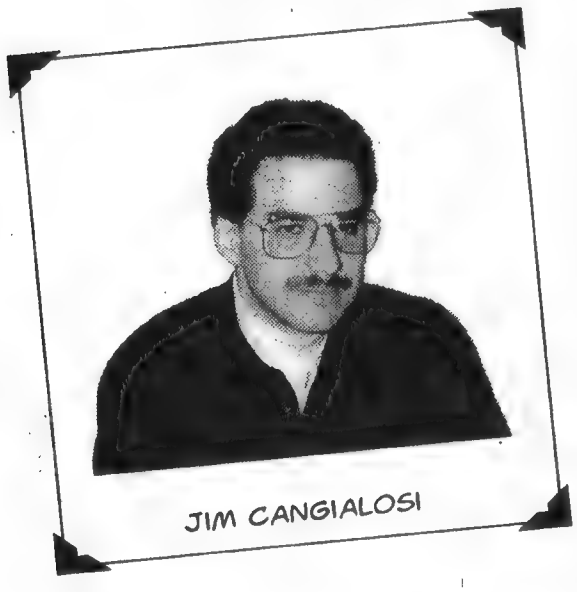
Though Master Comics was really "just" a comic book, it was much more to me. The stories Raboy depicted were like none in any other publication. His use of cast shadows and broken-panel layouts, and his unparalleled sense of detail made every tale he drew an unforgettable treasure.

It's a tragedy that we know so little about the late, great Mac Raboy. He passed on just as the dream of organized Comic Fandom was being realized. But by that time, it was too late. Raboy died in 1967, only three years before I was born. And that's why I hurt so much. Mac Raboy was one of only a few illustrators I'd like to thank in person. I don't believe Captain Marvel, Jr. would have had the same effect on me if Mac Raboy hadn't been his artistic chronicler. But I never had the chance to thank him. I try not to dwell on my regret, because I had no control over events.

I owe a lot to Mac Raboy. I owe him the mental and physical stability of my youth. I owe it to him, to two mighty words, and to a glorious bolt of lightning!

Talking Shop

A "chat" with some of our dealer friends conducted by Jim Cangialosi



The Year That Was

1995 was a wild and frantic year in the world of comics. Many unexpected events took place—some of which will have long, possibly damaging effects on the hobby's future. From the many comic book publishers that went exclusive with specific distributors, to the arrests of the owners of Planet Comics (more about this next month) in Oklahoma, the face of the hobby is evolving. Where it will finally end up is anybody's guess.

This column began was under the title of "Hot-Cold-Bought-Sold;" eventually, it evolved into its current incarnation. And, as "Talking Shop" has evolved, so has the comic book hobby as a whole. Here at Mission Control, we try to remain upbeat about this hobby and its future, but some of the events that took place in 1995 have left even optimistic fans concerned about where things are headed. Let's take a closer look at some of the excitement that made '95 one of the most volatile years in comic history.

We begin with Marvel Comics announcing their purchase of, and exclusive distribution through, Heroes World. Due to tremendous losses in sales for ALL comic companies in '95, Marvel set out to make changes that would give them a bigger piece of the pie. Terming their industry-changing plans as "Marvelution," the comic company further explained their plans to merge and expand the Marvel Universe with that of Malibu Comics, another recent acquisition. Through "Marvelution," they just may have established themselves as the dominant comic company for the next century. (News Flash: Marvel stock has been hit hard recently! Maybe it wasn't such a good idea for Marvel to go public and buy up everything in sight...)

Other comic publishers were not about to take these events sitting down. DC Comics made a counter move by joining forces with Steve Geppi and Diamond Comics Distributors. These two powerful entities announced that DC would go exclusive with Diamond, to ensure their survival in the industry, and to afford new opportunities for the future.

The gloves were off, and the battle lines were drawn. One by one, comic companies began to flock towards Diamond to avoid being left out in the cold. Second tier companies, such as Image, Valiant, and Dark Horse, announced exclusive distribution deals with Diamond, "for the good of their companies and the industry as a whole."

Folks started to panic. Many began to fear for their businesses and livelihoods. Due to poor new book sales and problems with distributors, comic shops began closing like wildfire. Distribution companies like Andromeda were forced out of business. Capital City still remains in business, but have been forced to lay off many employees just to survive.

Where is all this "evolution" leading the hobby? Only one thing is certain: if comic companies don't improve the writing and art in their books, THEY won't survive! If publishers want fans to shell out cold, hard cash for comics, they'd better produce books worth their incredible cover prices!

Fortunately (for dealers of back issues, that is), the changes in the new book area had little negative effect on vintage sales. Golden Age comics became HOT, HOT, HOT! Prices on these early comics took off and have not leveled off yet. Timelys were the books of choice for a while, especially those with cover art by Alex Schomburg (whose work finally received the recognition it deserved). Many Timely Comics were going at 2X, 3X, and 4X guide.

Unfortunately, the investors and speculators in the hobby began to outnumber the true collectors. Investors saw dollar signs when they looked at some of these Golden Age gems, and felt that they could make a tidy profit on them. Some Timely sales reported in 1995 included: All-Winners Comics #1 in VG+ for $3,250; All-Winners Comics #5 in VFNM for $3,250; All-Winners Comics #19 in FVF for $2,000; copies of Captain America #1 in VF for $36,000; VF for $25,000; F for $15,000; and VG+ for $10,500; Captain America #3 in VF for $5,900; Captain America #4 in VFNM for $6,000; Captain America #5 in VF- for $3,000; Captain America #6 in NM- for $4,750; Captain America #7 in VFNM for $7,900; Captain America #10 in VF for $4,000; Captain America #15 in FVF for $2,285; Human Torch #30 in VF for $500; Marvel Comics #1 in apparent VF (slight restoration) for $40,000; Marvel Comics #1 (Kansas City Copy) for $51,000; Miss Fury #1 in VFNM for $2,500; Mystic Comics #1 in G+ for $1,900; USA Comics #1 in VG for $2,000; USA Comics #17 in NM for $1,050; Young Allies #1 in NM for $7,000 and Young Allies #3 (Chicago Copy) for $3,750.

Anything Timely moved, and moved quickly; many dealers couldn't keep them in stock. When Timelys became unattainable, fans turned their attentions to Golden Age DCs, which flew out of dealers' hands just as quickly. Reported sales of Golden Age DCs included: Action Comics #1 in VG+ for $35,000; Action Comics #2 in NM for $25,000; Adventure Comics #40 in F for $15,000; Adventure Comics #103 in NM-M for $7,700; All-American Comics #16 in F+ for $16,000; All-American Comics #16 in VF (restored) for $20,000; All-American Comics #18 in VF+ for $5,750; All-Flash Comics #1 in VFNM for $13,500; issues of All-Star Comics #3 in FVF (restored) for $6,500; VG+ for $6,500; and FVF for $18,000; All-Star Comics #7 in VFNM for $4,400; All-Star Comics #8 in VF for $26,000; All-Star Comics #16 (Gaines File Copy) in NM for $3,700; All-Star Comics #43 in NM for $1,100; issues of Batman #1 (Cosmic Aeroplane) for $44,000; in VGF for $14,000; and in G for $5,500; Batman #5 in VFNM for $7,000; Detective Comics #27 in apparent VF (slight restoration) for $60,000; Detective Comics #27 in GVG (unrestored) for $52,000; Detective Comics #31 in VGF for $10,000; Detective Comics #33 in VG for $7,150; Detective Comics #38 in VG for $5,000; Flash Comics #1 (slight restoration) for $20,000; Flash Comics #1 in FVF for $15,000; Green Lantern #1 for $7,150; Green Lantern #1 in FVF for $9,900; More Fun Comics #52 & 53 (Larson Copies) for $130,000; More Fun Comics #73 in F+ for $9,300; More Fun Comics #73 in VG for $2,400; More Fun Comics #101 in GVG for $750; NY World's Fair 1939 for $30,000; NY World's Fair 1940 in GVG for $1,750; Sensation Comics #1 in VFNM for $28,000; and Wonder Woman #1 in VF for $15,000.

Collectors went Golden Age crazy! When one set of titles became to pricey, they just moved on to another title or publisher. The "investor mentality" began driving Golden Age prices through the roof, and long-time collectors began migrating towards more esoteric titles. Unfortunately, investors began drifting in that direction, as well.

The market for esoteric books was not as volatile as the demand for DC and Timely comics, but the prices on some books began to take off. Alex Schomburg, LB Cole and Matt Baker covers were in high demand all year, and remain so today. Various reported sales on some esoteric titles included: Exciting Comics #9 (Larson Copy) for $6,500; Green Hornet #1 (Mile High) for $7,500; Jumbo Comics #1 in FR+ for $2,520; Jumbo Comics #2 in G for $1,440; Phantom Lady #18 in NM- for $1,200; Silver Streak Comics #1 in FVF for $10,000; and Wonder Comics #1 (Allentown Copy) for $11,000.

As prices rose on all types of Golden Age books, investors and speculators began to turn heads toward an area that had cooled somewhat during 1995: the Silver Age of comics. These books seemed inexpensive compared to their Golden Age counterparts.

When some dealers indicated a slowdown in Silver Age books, collectors and investors began considering it a dead area of the hobby. But, as prices on Golden Age books continued to climb, many returned to the Silver Age in the hope of picking up some books dirt cheap. Not all Silver Age comics attracted attention, though. Most interest focused on high-grade Marvels and Dcs, and early issues of Amazing Spider-Man and X-Men in all grades. Interest in ASM and X-Men even equaled the demand for various Golden Age books!

Silver Age sales for 1995 included: Amazing Fantasy #15 in VG+ for $2,500; Amazing Fantasy #15 in GVG for $1,400; numerous issues of Amazing Spider-Man #1 in VG for $2,200; #1 in VGF for $2,250; #1 in VF for $7,500; #2 in NM for $4,600; #2 in VFNM for $2,900; #2 in VFNM for $4,000; #3 in VFNM for $1,000; #3 in NM for $3,400; #5 in NM for $2,200; #6 in NM for $2,000; #7 in NM+ for $1,500; #8 in NM for $1,150; #10 in NM for $1,000; #12 in NM for $800; #13 in NM- for $850; #14 in NM for $2,500; #14 in VFNM for $1,250; #14 in F for $450; #15 in NM for $1,000; #16 in NM for $1,000; #16 in NM for $600; #18 in NM for $575; #21 in NM for $360 and #23 in M for $610; Amazing Spider-Man Annual #1 in NM for $950; Avengers #1 in VF for $1,400; Avengers #4 in VF for $800; Avengers #4 in VF+ for $850; Avengers #4 in VF+ for $1,400; Avengers #4 in NM for $2,000; Danger Trail #3 (Mile High Copy) for $6,300; Fantastic Four #4 in VF+ for $1,800; Fantastic Four #48 in VFNM for $600; Incredible Hulk #1 in VF+ for $1,100; Incredible Hulk #1 in VFNM for $8,000; Showcase #4 in VF- for $18,000; Strange Tales #110 in VFNM for $750; X-Men #1 in VG for $750; X-Men #1 in G+ for $600; X-Men #2 in GVG for $185; X-Men #2 in NM for $1,400; X-Men #94 in VG for $45. It seemed people were willing to spend money on high-grade Silver Age copies, but those low grade VG-F copies lingered in the background and showed little sign of life.

The most astounding prices reported this year were for the Mile High copy of Whiz Comics #2 and the third best-known copy of action comics #1. Steve geppi purchased the Mile High Whiz #2 for the unprecedented sum of $176,000; and PCE sold the third best-known copy of Action Comics #1 for $137,000. Both sales set records for these books, and made collectors wonder how high the prices for top quality comics could go. Evidently, in the world of comics, the sky's the limit!

But dealers are still worried about the future of comic shops. They're concerned about abysmal experiences at conventions, and they're afraid censorship is rearing its ugly head in comic-land again. Apparently, the cost of setting up at conventions, and of purchasing table space, is bleeding dealers dry. Many aren't even attending the larger conventions any more.

Why is this happening? Dealers say the glitz and giveaways from comic companies are seducing fans away from buying older comics at conventions. All I can say about that is comic fans had better get their act together! If the only reason they're in this hobby is to make money on the current "hot" book, or the rare giveaway, we're all better off without them. True collectors know that no amount of money can replace the fun of reading your favorite comic.

I also implore organizers to start running conventions that appeal to all types of comic fans, and not to over charge dealers. Don't be concerned with the short term and the quick buck. In the long run, if you put together conventions that appeal to a wider range of fans, those fans will keep coming back year after year. And publishers should take heed, as well! By keeping older characters available in good stories for older fans, you'll develop a loyal following; if you keep trying to come up with the next Superman or Spider-Man, you'll just lose readers.

This year, the world of comics lost two great artists: Don Heck and Mort Meskin. I single out these two great talents because I don't think they ever received the honors they deserved. Don Heck's work on Avengers gave new depth to the characters, and made them appear more lifelike. And, if you look at the Golden Age adventures of the Vigilante and Johnny Quick, you can tell Mort Meskin truly loved his work and the characters he drew. I could go on and on about these men. Instead, why don't you should sniff out some of their work and see for yourself? Always remember the people who worked or continue to work on your favorite characters. They deserve acknowledgment and thanks for the effort they put into creating fun and exciting characters and stories.

Many articles written in 1995 by various Comics Source patrons gave new meaning to the term "comic collector."

Thanks to Russ Horseman, we learned that the smell of printer's ink can take us on a wondrous journey through the many worlds that make up our favorite comic book universes. Sterling Dashiell walked us through the chilling period of DC's horror renaissance, and Gene Lomoriello showed fans what they were missing in many undervalued issues of Avengers. Bill Schelly gave us the history of comic fandom, and Craig Shutt taught us a number of lessons about the fun-filled Silver Age. And we snapped up little tidbits of rare information from Jim Korkis in "From the Archives."

But perhaps the most laborious endeavor of any CS writer was that undertaken by Tom Morehouse, who began listing every work by the late, great Jack Kirby. I'm sure this hasn't been an easy task! Tom, I've enjoyed the first half of "The Kompleat Kirby" a great deal! And I think we all should thank Jon Warren, Bryan Chambers, Wade Sain and the rest of the publishing team for putting out a great magazine. When CS started, our goal was to open the eyes and minds of collectors; I think we've taken a great step toward accomplishing that. It's been great to be part of the new Comic Fandom with all of you. By pulling together, the huge Comics Source family made 1995 a great year! Let's do it again in 1996!

Happy New Year!

Thanks to everyone for making this a great year!

TICKER TAPE
THE GUIDE TO SOLD

Here's How It Works

What Is TickerTape? It's a new way of reporting comic book values. Instead of a "price guide," TickerTape is an actual list of sales prices as reported by our subscribers and our network of dealer advisors.

Great Idea!

At first, some readers don't understand what's going on. But once they see what it's all about, most say, "Whoa! Why didn't someone think of this before?"

TickerTape answers the questions What? When? and For How Much?

With TickerTape, making purchasing decisions is a snap.

What's something really worth? What someone is willing to pay, that's what. Now you know!

Remember!

All of the prices you see in TickerTape are actual sales —not estimates, averages, or guesses.

Write to Us!

We're interested in what our subscribers think about TickerTape, so if you have any thoughts or suggestions, write us at TickerTape c/o Comics Source, Box 2512, Chattanooga, TN 37409

THIS MONTH the TickerTape section covers comics that were reported as sold since September of 1995. Thanks to everyone who contributed sales info!

Classifieds

Here's How It Works

What is this section called Comic Book Classifieds? Think of it as a typical classified ad section—but with a twist. The twist is that the ad classifications are the actual comic book titles, so, if you collect X-Men, you simply look under the heading for that title and presto, you'll find all the issues of X-Men available for sale. It's a great new way for collectors to buy and sell comics. Because all titles are listed alphabetically, regardless of who the seller is, finding comics for your collection is a snap.

How Do You Contact The Seller?

We're not a middleman, you contact the seller directly. Notice at the end of each classified ad is a code, like "CHAN2" for example. This code identifies the seller. Turn to the Classified Advertiser Directory (located in the back of this issue) to find CHAN2's name, address, and telephone number. Pick up the phone and place your order, or send an order through the mail!

Great Idea!

At first, some readers don't understand what's going on. But once they see what it's all about, most say, "Whoa! Why didn't someone think of this before?"

Don't Forget.

Remember, all of the items in the Comic Book Classifieds are either FOR SALE or WANTED. You contact buyers or sellers directly, using their ID Code and the advertiser directory found in the back of this issue.

Send Us A Testimonial!

We're always looking for feedback from dealers and collectors who rely on our unique classified marketplace, so we invite you to "tell us all about it", write us at Comics Source Classifieds, Box 2512, Chattanooga, TN 37409

Who knows, we may publish your letter in an upcoming issue!

BUYING DIRECT

MAIL-ORDER TIPS

For many of you, mail-order is a primary means of purchasing items for your collection. That's why COMICS SOURCE has put together the following special section. Our Marketplace offers a convenient place to quickly find the items you need from a wide variety of dealers and collectors. But before you shop by phone, look for the mail-order source that is best for you. Here are a few tips to help you get the most out of your buying experience.

Mail order is an excellent way to buy and sell, because it gives you instant access to more buyers, sellers and merchandise than can be found in almost any regional market. But, as in any endeavor, it's smart to take precautions.

Here are a few tips that will make your dealings through the mail easy and hassle free.

Research The Company

Well-established companies or long-time collectors tend to be reliable, but if you're not sure how well established a company or individual is, it pays to do a little research and ask a few questions. Get References. Call the publication the ad was placed in and inquire as to any complaints levied against the persons placing the ad. Comics Source blacklists any advertiser who receives three unresolved written complaints.

Start Small

Purchase inexpensive items first, if possible. If you're pleased with the service you receive, order again.

Compare Prices

If a price seems too good to be true, beware. One of the greatest features of our marketplace is the ability to quickly compare prices. If someone's price is far below what others are offering the item for, ask why. There could be a good reason, but sometimes this is a sign of a potential rip-off. We try to screen advertisers, but it's still smart to take precautions.

Pay With Credit

Whenever possible, use a credit card. Some credit card companies do such things as chargeback on unsatisfactory purchases or give a refund if you find a lower price elsewhere. If you have a problem with an order, your credit card company will often deal with the mail-order company.

Be Cautious

Keep a record of your transactions (orders, follow-up letters, phone conversations) so that you have recourse in the unlikely event of a problem.

Consider using a 3rd party service

3rd party services, such as Pacific Comics Exchange, offer to act as an escrow service. Companies charge a fee for this service, but the fee is well worth it if you're spending large sums of money.

Ask For Photocopies

Most reliable collectors or dealers will be only too glad to send you a photocopy or Polaroid photo of an item. Sometimes they may ask for a small fee per photo.

Delivery Methods

Ask about delivery methods — find out what carriers are used, how fast they are, and how much each one costs. Record delivery information.

Return Policies

Because you're buying sight unseen, make sure the company or individual has a return policy you're comfortable with. Find out if you are responsible for paying shipping charges on returned goods and whether you'll be charged a restocking fee. A typical return policy is six days from date of receipt. If the company does not offer a return policy, don't buy!

How I Cut My Teeth On Comics

BY BRYAN CHAMBERS
CHATTANOOGA, TN

When Jon asked me to write this month's "Down Memory Lane" segment, I jumped at the chance.

"I'll do it for $700," I said.

After much haggling and swearing, we finally settled on a price: I get to keep my job.

So much for free enterprise.

Still, since so many of you have told us about your collecting experiences, I guess it's only fair for me to inflict...I mean, SHARE...my first comic book memories with you now. So Sherman, set the Wayback Machine for 1974...return with me, now, to those thrilling days of yesteryear, when men were men, comics were 20¢, girls still had cooties, and I was a snot-nosed kid of seven, bent on making hay while the sun was up...

I was one of only four kids on my street, a two-block long double row of houses bordered from behind by a thin line of trees. My parents always told me not to play in the "woods" because of ticks, snakes, and poison ivy. From my point of view, though, those trees housed more serious dangers; they fairly bristled with top-secret underground installations, doorways to other dimensions, and hiding places full of alien invaders. Criminy! SOMEBODY had to keep an eye on things, and the grown-ups sure couldn't do it! They were at work all day, or inside their houses, for Pete's sake!

My only ally in the fight was a thin, anemic-looking boy named Walter Smith. He was what you might call, "antisocial"—studious to the point of exclusion! From sunup to sundown, he read books about science, watched documentaries on PBS, and conducted his own experiments. He was a real adventurer, was Walter.

But, for some reason, he was willing to tear himself away from "the Lab" to play with me. And we made the most of our time, going on big game hunts, building treehouses, and tracking down deadly swarms of man-eating insects.

Physically, though, Walt just wasn't cut out for such a strenuous lifestyle. His pale complexion betrayed his real passion, as did the black, plastic-framed glasses he always wore—Walt's habit of poring over *National Geographic*s and encyclopedia entries had slaved him to two large lenses made of pop-bottle thick glass (they may not have looked like much, but they were just right for setting fire to anthills and piles of dry leaves). We had to completely eliminate the physical training segment of MI-5's "Double-0" certification program just so he could accompany me on my next campaign against S.P.E.C.T.R.E. (they had a secret base hidden in Mrs. Hall's tulip bed—and God knows WHAT deviltry they were up to)!

Walt's parents always encouraged me to play with their son. I guess he didn't have too many playmates—and I KNOW he didn't have any other friends like me. After an afternoon of routing evil with me, Walt would return home covered in dust, dirt, or mud (depending on the humidity and how far we'd had to run to escape the Killer Bees). His mother would meet him at the door, beaming proudly at her filthy son! I don't think she even made him wash for dinner!

Of course, we had our bad days, too. One afternoon, Mrs. Smith's washing machine suddenly sprouted a rift into the center of the earth! Of course, you know Walt and I HAD to do something about it—prehistoric monsters were escaping through the loading door! And that laundry room was only so big...

Anyway, I don't know what kind of concoction it was that Walt whipped up out of his chemistry set. I don't know if it was an explosive, a poison, or just good, old-fashioned dinosaur repellent. All I know is, it sealed that crevasse tighter than a bank vault!

And it turned Mrs. Smith's laundry bright green.

Needless to say, Walter's parents were less than thrilled. But, after a suitably lengthy grounding, he and I teamed up once more. And it was a good thing, too! During our absence, a six foot volcano had erupted in my front yard! We had to use all the ice from our parents' freezers to lower its core temperature before it exploded!

Then came the day of the snake. Walt and I were playing in a neighbor's yard, digging around in the dirt (looking for trip-wires, of course), when we got the bright idea of tipping over an old, rotten log to look for...well, whatever we could find! As soon as we pushed it over, Walter gasped. I looked down, and saw what could only be a baby snake stretched out on the dead grass!

After summoning our courage—and ransacking the kitchen for a mason jar—we captured the beast. In the spirit of fair play, we decided one of us would take it to school the next day, and the other would have his chance after that. Unfortunately, Walt had possession first.

When he got to his class, he proudly marched to the front of the room and displayed the caged animal. While Walt was reciting some facts culled from the Britannica's "Snake" section, his teacher examined the jar. With a patronizing chuckle, she announce the critter was NOT a snake, just an EXTREMELY large slug. The kids laughed at Walter, and the teacher told him he needed to learn more about snakes AND slugs.

After that, Walt and I didn't play together very much. He hit the books even harder, and came up for air less frequently. I think he blamed me for his "shame" in front of his class—one of the few times he'd been wrong in public since he'd started school.

"So," you're asking, "What about the comic books?"

Here they come.

A few months later, for his birthday, Walt's parents gave him the Holiest of grade-school Grails...a THREE-SPEED BIKE! With a SPEEDOMETER! I was overjoyed! I knew when my good friend finally came out of his shell, I'd be able to use his nearly-Divine gift, too! So I waited...

Three months later, summer was almost over. School was about to begin again, and I hadn't seen Walt stir out of his house since May. The bike had rested, untouched, in the Smiths' garage, collecting cobwebs, for weeks on weeks. And my fever was growing...

Finally, in an act of desperation, I knocked on his front door. When his mother came out, I explained my plight. She was more than happy to let me ride the bike. "I'm just glad it's finally seeing some use," she shook her head. "I don't think Walter's been on it once."

But I didn't hear her. I was racing out of the garage on the bike, and had probably already broken the sound barrier. I pedalled for all I was worth, watching the speedometer translate my efforts into simple, numerical values: 5mph...10mph...15mph...

When I struck the front bumper of the parked car, I was moving at exactly thirteen miles-per-hour. I slowed drastically when my mouth hit the front windshield. And, by the time I landed on the grass beyond, I didn't care how fast I was going. The impact had snapped the front four teeth in my upper jaw neatly in two, just outside the gum.

Mrs. Smith took me inside, cleaned my face, and called Mom. I was a wreck! This real, physical pain had driven away all my alien-bashing courage. I couldn't even focus my eyes because of the tears. But when Mrs. Smith pressed something into my hands, all my thoughts of blood and splintered enamel evaporated.

It was a stack of comic books!

I'd never really read comics before. I didn't even know Walt HAD any. In response to my barely intelligible questions, his mom told me he kept them under his bed, out of the way. "Walter just doesn't read them any more," she said. "I think he's outgrown them."

Until Mom arrived to rescue me, I passed the time flipping through the brightly-colored pages. In my hands, I held copies of Action, Superman, Archie, and many other books. I read about the nuclear testing that had destroyed all Kryptonite on Earth—but that had accidentally created an evil, subhuman duplicate of Superman. I thrilled to the adventures of the Atom—a backup in Action—as he fought the schemes of Chronos and the Two-Dimensional Man. And I almost laughed through my tears at the Adventures of Jerry Lewis, as the little guy encountered a band of picnic ants the size of tigers.

I was hooked. When Mom arrived, I stumbled into her car with the precious bundle clutched under my arm.

Recently, I happened to run into Walter and his parents in a local restaurant. He was in town, visiting from the West Coast, where he works as a computer programmer in Silicon Valley. I talked for several minutes with his parents, while Walt ate his food silently, his nose buried in the book that rested on the table beside his plate. Eventually, I said my goodbyes, and left.

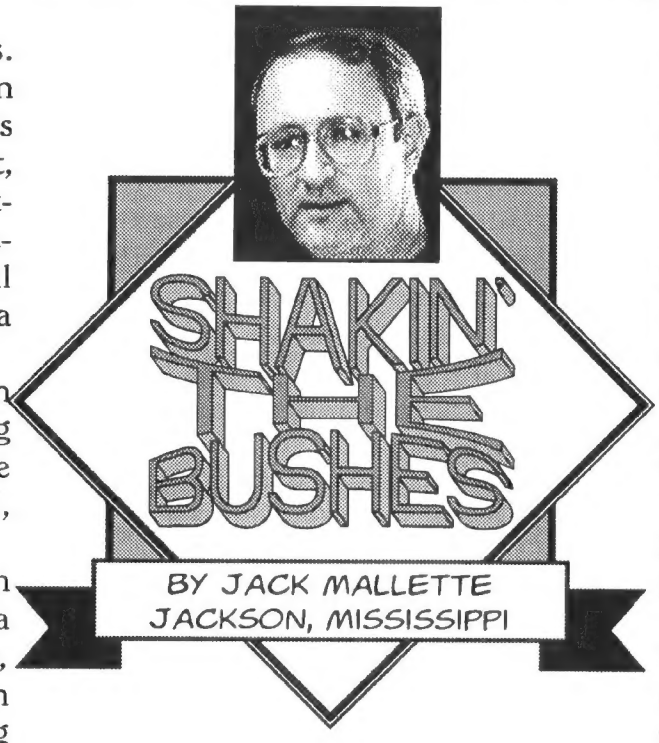
That chance encounter helped me understand a few things about Walter. I found out he's part of the design team that programmed the Apple Newton. I found out his parents were thinking of moving to California to be nearer to him. And I found out, if his silence was any indication, that he still bears something of a grudge for the things we did that disrupted the world of his childhood.

And that's too bad, because I took something valuable away from our friendship. That August day, as I read those comics and dripped the occasional splatter of blood and tears on their pages, I began reading for pleasure. Sure, I'd already known HOW to read, but it had been mostly a chore until then. My love of comics saw me through all of my adolescence, and has been with me most of my adult life. I turned that love into a passion for classic literature, great films, and travel. And it eventually led me to my livelihood—helping put Comics Source on the newsstands every month.

I was sorry Walter didn't feel like talking to me in the restaurant that day. In a way, though, I was glad he didn't utter a word.

I was afraid he might ask for his comic books back. And you KNOW that's not gonna happen!

Jack Talks about Sportscards and Wal-Mart, and Drops a Few Names!



I'm having an identity crisis. Mine is not the most common last name in the world, and it is rare that I run across anyone with it, or similar spellings. We're all distantly related, even the late character actor Arthur Malet. I've got a baseball card of a guy named Millette, and a hockey card of a Troy Mallette.

Lately I've run across several in the news, including the girl trying to take Shannon Faulkner's place in her fight to enter the Citadel, Nancy Mellette.

Then I came across a few in comic fandom as well. I've got a long lost cousin editing Areola, Warrior Nun, and one who even has a column in the fledgling Comics Shopper!

But I'll admit I wasn't prepared at all when I picked up a recent copy of The Buyer's Guide, and there in the letters column was one from Jack W. Mallette in Austin, Texas.

Did I move? A quick reality check assured me that I was still miles away from Texas. Then I read the letter to see if I had sent it in and it had just received someone else's address. Wrong again.

Finally, I was forced to conclude that there was someone else walking around out there with MY NAME! And he collects comics, no less!

We've definitely been swimming in the same gene pool.

Maybe I'll start my own club, like the Jim Smith Club, you know? Yeah, that's the ticket! You have to be named Jack Mallette. And you have to collect comics.

Hey, we just doubled in size.

One note of culture shock from my latest trip to California. I had dinner one night in Beverly Hills with Mark Politi of Zarrart Publishing, David Levi of David Levi's Baseball Cards on Beverly Drive—how's that for a plug, David—and David's girlfriend-du-jour, Cheryl Iforgotyourlastname.

Somehow the conversation turned to action figures, specifically Power Rangers, and then to Wal-Mart.

To make a long, involved story a short one, I was sitting at a table with two people, David and Cheryl, who had not only never been shopping in a Wal-Mart, they HAD NEVER EVEN SEEN ONE!

Hell, I know people who figure what they spend at Wal-Mart as a percentage of their adjusted gross income! When they figure their budget, it's planned something like this: Comics, food, cable, Coca-Cola®, Wal-mart.

With three children under the age of seven, I'm on a first-name basis with everyone who works in Wal-Mart's pharmacy. And half the checkout people.

It'll be a long time before I get over this one.

Mark's company, Zarrart, publishes all those cool Chromart cover reproductions of comics like Superman number one, Action number one, and all the Star Wars and Batman posters and art. If you haven't seen them yet, they are gorgeous! He's also done a Superman portfolio that's a knockout. Shopowners, take note: these puppies are an inexpensive retail, and they SELL! When so much of what we buy nowadays doesn't, it's nice to see something that does.

Check out Zarrart's booth at the next big show you attend, or call directory assistance in L.A. And ask for Zarrart.

So, I'm standing in David Levi's Baseball Card Shop on Beverly Drive when I look up and see a tall, willowy blonde with two children who looks an awful lot like Janet Jones, wife of hockey superstar Wayne Gretsky.

When I finally realize that it is her, I introduce myself and we talk for a minute.

Since I'm also active in card collecting, I'm aware of L.A. Kings owner Bruce McNall's problems with tax evasion, and I'm also aware of the fact that Wayne had bought Bruce's share of the famous 1/2 million dollar Honus Wagner tobacco card.

When I asked her what was going to become of the card, she said, "Well, it's funny you should ask. Wayne sold it this morning."

When I retrieved my jaw from the floor, she told me that it was a private sale, and that the purchaser planned to give it away in some sort of promotion.

I asked if this was public knowledge, and she said yes, that Wayne was already telling people, and that the press would know about it very soon.

Later that afternoon I called Kevin Isaacson at Sport Collector's Digest, and after confirming several details, SCD ran it as the lead story in their twice-weekly Sportsfax, a full five weeks before any other media, including ESPN, had the story.

The card is the keystone in a huge upcoming promotion at—you guessed it—Wal-Mart.

I'll bet David visits one now.

It just goes to show you. Make the effort. Go ahead, shake a few bushes. You never know what will fall out.

Until next time, be honest, be fair, beware.

Bye!
